S. A. Churches Arrange Special Yule Programs

CANTATAS TO BE GIVEN BY GROUPS HERE

Christmas Exercises, Play
And Music Arranged
For Next Sunday

Special programs of Christmas music will be presented in Santa Ana churches next Sunday, honoring the Savior's birth.

In some instances the Christmas programs are planned in connection with the regular hours of worship, while in others the afternoon or evening hours during the day will feature the special music.

Plan Bach Program

In one church, the First Methodist, the Christmas music is arranged for December 27, the Sunday following Christmas, when a Bach program will be presented, but next Sunday also will see Christmas observance in this church. A children's program is scheduled following the morning service, and a Christmas play will be presented at 5:30 p. m. The play, "The Three Who Met at Banbury Cross," will be directed by the Misses June Arnold and Helen Wieseman.

At the First Presbyterian church, Dr. O. Scott McFarland, pastor, will preach next Sunday morning on "And His Name—". The adult and young people's choirs of the church, directed by Whitford L. Hall, will present two selections: "Slumber Song of The Infant Jesus," (Gavarré), and "How Beautiful Are the Feet of Him" (from Handel's Messiah). The program will start at 10:45 a. m.

The same selection will be presented by the choir of the First Christian church Sunday morning at the 9:30 service. G. Willard Bassett, choir director, will sing a tenor solo, "New Born King" (Esprit).

A Christmas cantata will be presented by the choir of the First Christian church Sunday morning at the 9:30 service.

F. D. R. NEUTRAL IN HOUSE FIGHT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—(UP)—President Roosevelt today said emphatically that the White House will adhere strictly to its rule of non-interference in the selection of a Democratic house leader.

Mr. Roosevelt pointed out that since 1933 there have been three different speakers and two house contests involving the speaker-ship. On each occasion the White House studiously refrained from taking any part whatsoever in the final choice, he said.

He told newspapermen that, as has been his custom, he will deliver his annual message to congress in person but did not indicate whether it would be presented at noon or at night.

The next day, he explained, he will send to congress the budget message.

He revealed that he in all probability will follow this year's custom in submitting an estimate of relief funds later in the year.

He was asked whether he planned to visit the Philippine islands and replied there was nothing at all planned with regard to a Philippine trip.

The president said he had not decided on a successor as yet to Frank Murphy, who resigned the Philippine high commissioner-ship to run for governor of Michigan. He indicated that no thought would be given to any appointments until after January 1.

BRITE BROTHERS TRIAL ENDS SOON

YREKA, Calif., Dec. 18.—(UP)—Final arguments were presented today in the murder trial of John and Coke Brite, the Horse Creek brothers accused of killing two peace officers and a deer hunter during a midnight shooting affray deep in the Siskiyou mountains.

Yesterday the defense concluded its direct testimony designed to show that the brothers killed Officers Martin Lange and Joseph Clark, and Fred Seaborn, Mare Island navy pilot, in self-defense.

REBEL AIR RAIDS BRING RUIN TO MADRID

To residents of Madrid the horrors of war have been "brought home" as death and destruction confined to the fighting lines never could. Ripped open as though made of cardboard instead of masonry and concrete, the apartment house was the target of one of numerous fatal air raids systematically conducted by rebels against the Spanish capital. Water fills the shell hole in the street in the foreground, and the bare, maimed trees make the scene look like one from the western front.

JURORS LASHED BY JUDGE ALLEN

Scorching rebuke was administered by Superior Judge James L. Allen yesterday to a jury in his court, which returned a verdict finding Lee Holliday, 20, guilty of criminally attacking a 17-year-old Santa Ana girl, but recommending a county jail sentence instead of state's prison.

His voice shaking with anger, after the verdict was filed, Judge Allen lashed the jurors for "failing to protect the chastity of Orange county girlhood."

Verdict Astounding

"Your verdict is astounding from a jury of supposed intelligence," he declared. "In all my years on the bench I have never before seen so dastardly a case as this. I want to go over the facts of this case with you."

He then proceeded to point out that evidence in the case had shown that the girl had been chaste; that Holliday had "deliberately set about to ruin her" first by getting her intoxicated and then by attacking her. It had not been his first attempt, said the court.

"She will bear the blot all her life, and every time her mother looks at her, that shadow must flash across her mind," said the judge.

Says Defendant Lucky

"This defendant is lucky that he lived in Orange county. In many other localities he never would have lived to stand trial."

Judge Allen dismissed the jury with the final scornful advice that "if you ever try another case, I hope you will pay some attention to the evidence."

He said that Holliday had actually committed six crimes, first by purchasing the liquor, then contributing to the delinquency of the girl, then by driving the car while intoxicated, then assaulting the girl, then the crime itself, for which he was tried, and finally, perjury in his court testimony.

U. S. DROPS QUIZ IN ROBLES CASE

TUCSON, Ariz., Dec. 18.—(UP)—The kidnapping of little June Robles, whose 19-day disappearance in 1934 ended when she was found locked in a cage half-sunk in the desert, was relegated to the morgue of unsolved mysteries today.

U. S. District Attorney Frank Flynn announced he would recommend that the government close its 32-month-old investigation as result of a grand jury report that no evidence existed to warrant an indictment.

"It is my intention to recommend to the department of justice that the federal investigation be discontinued and the case closed," Flynn announced.

21 Million Workers Of U. S. Signed

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—(UP)—Twenty-one million of the approximately 26 million American workers eligible for federal old age pensions have applied to the Social Security board for authorization to participate in the program, it was reported today.

The board said 21,335,120 employees had filed applications up to noon December 16 with 45,637 post offices throughout the country.

The applications represented more than 82 per cent of the total number of employees expected to co-operate with employers starting January 1 to finance the program.

The board, after a survey conducted by the post office department, reported 12,563,459 employees' old age pension identification cards have been issued to workers.

12 PLANES SEEK LOST AIRLINER

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Dec. 18.—(UP)—Twelve ships, ranging from two seater scouting planes to 10-passenger transports, took off from Salt Lake City airport today on the first phase of an air survey expected to cover 14,000 square miles of mountains and desert during the day's hunt for a missing airliner and its seven occupants.

Western Air Express officials directing the hunt abandoned for the time being their concentrated search of the past three days. They sent planes sweeping out to every point of the compass seeking trace of the big Boeing transport which vanished early Tuesday on a Los Angeles-Salt Lake City run.

One plane went to Tonopah, Nev. Another roared northward to Locomotive Springs, at the northern end of Great Salt Lake, while others returned to the Alpine-Pleasant Grove area where the missing transport has been sought in a great concentration of air and ground searches heretofore.

Milford Area Searched

Other ships flew farther south, checking a theory that Pilot S. J. Samson, losing the radio signal which would have brought him safely into Salt Lake City, may have reversed his course and proceeded back directly southward toward Milford, Utah, where he last radioed that he was headed down the "home stretch."

150 NATIVES KILLED

LONDON, Dec. 18.—(UP)—Cable advices to local mine agents indicated today that the manager and 150 natives were killed in an explosion at Andrew Yule and company's Paldith coal mine near Ssanoli, 100 miles northwest of Calcutta, India.

$487,000 PAID ON DEBT HERE

Santa Ana school district today wiped out the bulk of its debt to the state, for earthquake rehabilitation loans, by payment of $487,000, representing the Green bill loan to Santa Ana high school.

Payment was made following receipt of $487,800 from R. H. Moulton and associates, purchasers of the $487,000 high school bonds recently voted to retire the Green bill loan. The check included accrued interest and premium on the bonds.

Receipt of payment from the purchasers of the $124,000 elementary bonds, voted for the same purpose, is expected daily by local school officials, according to Chairman George Wells, of the board of education, who expressed satisfaction with the "fortunate position of the district in being able to retire the state loan, with a large saving in interest charges."

The new bonds were sold at an interest rate representing a saving of more than 2 per cent as compared to the Green Bill loan, which carried an interest rate of 4.4 per cent. The total saving will range well above $100,000, it is stated.

CHURCHILL PLANS VISIT IN FLORIDA

LONDON, Dec. 18.—(UP)—Winston Churchill, who supported former King Edward VIII in his crisis with the British cabinet over Mrs. Wallis Simpson, will sail for the United States on the Berengaria on December 22. Churchill will visit friends at Palm Beach, and return to England in January.

OVER $118 CONTRIBUTED IN SALVATION ARMY'S CAMPAIGN

Cash and checks coming into offices of the Santa Ana Salvation Army and The Register yesterday afternoon and today brought the "share-your-happiness barometer" to the $118 mark, with $352 yet to be contributed in this year's campaign to bring joy again to hearts of needy children and their families.

Only the highly deserving, Capt. Lewis McAllan of the Salvation Army said, are to be selected, "but we know there will be at least 400 Christmas baskets needed, and additional funds for the annual Christmas party and the Christmas day dinner for homeless men of the community."

"In direct connection with the work of the army," he said, "there will be a special Christmas program under auspices of the Salvation Army, broadcast from 7:30 p. m. to 8 p. m. Saturday over the Columbia system. This broadcast

Interest Is Aroused In S. A. Contest

Widespread interest has been aroused in the Christmas tree home window display contest being staged from now on until Christmas eve by the chamber of commerce and The Register.

A checkup along the thoroughfares of Santa Ana reveals that the "window display" Christmas trees are being set up in every section of the city. According to R. M. Conklin, circulation manager of The Register, many telephone calls are being received from citizens inquiring about rules and regulations of the contest.

Contest Rules Simple

Today's coupon appears on page 2. The rules are simple. Contestants need not be subscribers of The Register and the only requisites are that they live in Santa Ana, set up their trees here, in the window of a private home, and send in their coupons when they are ready to have their trees judged. Commercial houses, including hotels and apartment houses, are not permitted to join in the contest, staged for "the home folks" exclusively.

"You have nothing to lose and a possibility of winning one of three prizes," Howard I. Wood, chamber of commerce secretary, said today. "Send in your coupon early."

Here are the rules:

All Judging Outside Home

1. Size of Christmas tree to be decorated makes no difference but must be placed inside of the home, adjacent to a window. 2. Judges will make their decisions on beauty of tree and decorations only. 3. All judging will be done from outside of the contestants' homes without contacting occupants of the homes. 4. When you are ready to have tree judged, clip coupon from The Register and mail or deliver to Register office. 5. Only residents of Santa Ana are eligible to enter contest but no Register employee may enter. 6. Contest closes Christmas eve.

GROUND FOR POPPY SEEDS BROKEN HERE

All Citizens Requested To Co-Operate In Movement
In Mayor's Statement

First ground was broken early this morning in Santa Ana's poppy-planting and civic beautification project, and seeds were planted on North Main street.

Taking advantage of the recent rains, a group of three workmen spaded and raked in this area and will break more ground to the south with a plow or cultivator. They started south of Santa Clara avenue and will work through the city.

Scouts to Help

As the work progresses, according to Mrs. Ora K. Heine, chairman of the main committee, Santa Ana Boy Scouts will be enlisted in the project to help plant and care for the ground as the plants gain a foothold.

With the start of the work, the duties of A. N. Zerman, committee member, have been discharged. He and Dale Griggs, city park superintendent, were named as a committee to decide on the time and place to start the breaking of ground. Griggs frequently will contact the workers as he visits other projects that are included in his ordinary line of duty.

Hailed throughout the community as one of the most progressive projects of the city.

Vote On Strike Issues Slated

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 18.—(UP)—The Sailors' Union of the Pacific and the Marine Firemen's association, two of the seven striking unions involved in the Pacific Coast maritime walkout, today reached complete tentative agreements on major disputes with shipowners, Harry Lundberg, executive secretary of the Sailors' union, announced.

Confederated seamen were the questions of wages, hiring hall control, cash overtime instead of time off, and enforcement of future contracts. The wage question was the final issue upon which agreement was reached, Lundberg said.

Terms of the new wage scale were not disclosed, but will be announced jointly by the unions and the shipowners' negotiating committee, Lundberg said.

The tentative agreements will be submitted to members of the two unions for ratification during the weekend, Lundberg said.

Leaders to Organize Single Maritime Union

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 18.—(UP)—Agitation to organize all American maritime workers into a single vertical union was underway here today as union leaders completed arrangements for a mass meeting tomorrow.

Peter J. Innes Jr., lieutenant of Joseph Curran, leader of the insurgent striking sear and gulf coast seamen, is scheduled to speak at the meeting while Harry Bridges, western president of the International Longshoremen's association, will hold a simultaneous meeting in San Francisco.

Bridges and Innes returned to the Pacific coast together after the fiery Australian labor leader was ousted as district organizer of the I. L. A. by Joseph Ryan, international president.

Shot Breaks Up
Montevideo Debate

MONTEVIDEO, Dec. 18.—(UP)—A pistol shot fired in the chamber of deputies early today broke up a debate on constitutional reform.

The bullet was embedded in the wall above the head of the chairman. About 30 deputies, belonging to the different political factions, came to blows in the center of the chamber. It took several minutes to restore order.

It was impossible to learn who fired the shot, apparently intended as a demonstration against the proposed reforms which opponents say is a political device to give President Gabriel Terra another term in office.

REBELS FIRE ON U. S. NAVY BOAT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—(UP)—The state department confirmed today reports of an encounter between the U. S. S. Erie and a Spanish warship in the port of Gijon.

The department was advised that the Spanish vessel fired two shots in the general direction of the port of Gijon where the Erie had just arrived.

One shell fell about 500 yards from the Erie and the other landed in the hills behind the town, the department was advised.

The shots were fired from a range of about 10,000 yards.

Although the state department advised failed to identify the Spanish warship, reports from Spain said that the ship was the Nationalist warship Espana.

The commander of the Erie said he believed the Spanish warship was the Espana, but that he was not positive. After firing the two shots the warship steamed away in a westerly direction. The Erie did not return the fire.

CLAIM RUSSIAN SHIP DESTROYED BY REBELS

LONDON, Dec. 18.—(UP)—Private advices to London today contained an implication that the Spanish nationalist fleet may have halted, set fire to and abandoned freight steamer Komsovol off the 4,500-ton Russian government Oran, on the African coast of the Mediterranean.

The advices said the crew of from 25 to 30 were believed to have been rescued but it was added that their subsequent fate was unknown.

LEON TROTSKY MAY RESIDE IN MEXICO

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 18.—(UP)—Leon Trotsky, one time co-director of Soviet Russia, who asked permission to reside in Mexico, has been advised he will be welcome if he obeys Mexico's laws governing the political activities of political refugees, it was said officially today.

Trotsky applied through the Mexican legation in Paris for permission to reside in Mexico, it was said.

The government's permission was wired to Trotsky on the day his permission to reside under internment in Norway expires. At midnight Trotsky technically will be subject to expulsion. But immigration officials at Oslo informed the United Press that Trotsky was expected to remain for some time unless he left voluntarily.

FUGITIVE EXECUTED

CHICAGO, Dec. 18.—(UP)—Police turned to New York's murder and gangster records today for explanation of the pool room execution of Dominick Scaduto, 24, fugitive from the underworld. Three men stood Scaduto against a wall last night, shot him down with the precision of a firing squad and left.

Scaduto was not known to Chicago police and descriptions of his slayers offered nothing to link them with characters known here.

SEARCH FOR SHIP UNDER WAY TODAY

National Guard, Private
Airplanes Seek Craft;
Two Pilots On Board

SPOKANE, Wash., Dec. 18.—(UP)—Two National Guard planes and a private plane were searching southeast Washington today for a twin-motored Northwest airlines plane, with two pilots and mail, missing since 3:19 a. m. P.S.T.

The plane was last heard from, Roy Roose, Spokane manager of the Northwest airlines, said, at 3:19 a. m. when it reported it was near LaCrosse, Wash., about midway between Spokane and Walla Walla.

This position put the plane, piloted by Joe Livermore and Arthur Haid, on the Spokane southwest beam. The pilots had reported the wings were covered with ice.

Previously they radioed they had lost their bearings and were told to fly due west from Elk River, Ida., which would have put them in the approximate spot of the 3:19 report.

There are no landing fields in the immediate vicinity of LaCrosse but the terrain is such that the plane may have landed safely in a field.

GIANT BOMBERS OFF FOR NORTH

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Dec. 18.—(UP)—Six giant naval patrol bombers, the first of 176 contracted for by the navy, took off from San Diego harbor today in a secret flight, believed to be a 24-hour non-stop trip to Seattle and return. The flight is the first endurance test the huge air boats have undertaken.

Utmost secrecy surrounded the planes' take-off as the six huge bombers skimmed across the waters of San Diego bay and roared away. The planes carried a full load of fuel for the first time in their tests, but apparently the 15-ton ships took off with little difficulty.

Manned by crews of five men each, the squadron will fly to Seattle, an airline distance of approximately 1400 miles, unofficial sources said. Without landing, the bombers are scheduled to circle and return to their temporary base at San Diego. They are expected back tomorrow morning, it was said unofficially.

Comdr. William M. McDade, commander of patrol squadron six, Pearl harbor, where the new bombers will be stationed, led the flight.

The flight is part of the "shake-down" the planes are undergoing in preparation for their jump across the Pacific to Honolulu, scheduled next month.

CHIANG TO BE RELEASED

SHANGHAI, Saturday, Dec. 19.—(UP)—The Central News Agency here reported today that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek expects to return to Nanking on Saturday from Sian-Pu, in Shensi province, where he has been held for a week in a sudden uprising by young Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang.

ANTI PICKETING LAW IS GIVEN FIRST READING

City councilmen of Brea will await action by other city councils in the county before definitely approving an anti-picketing ordinance for that community.

The ordinance, patterned after a similar measure recently adopted by the county supervisors and recommended to all cities for adoption, was given its first reading last night when the Brea council held a brief session.

The delay in definite action on the measure was recommended by City Attorney Elmer R. Guy.

More stringent than the old "anti-picketing" ordinance which it supersedes, the measure, being recommended by the board of supervisors to all municipalities in the county, was adopted by that organization on recommendation of the grand jury.

The measure was presented to the supervisors by Dr. L. C. Deming, member of the grand jury, the document being accompanied by a note signed by Foreman Carl Mock and Secretary Edwin Backs declaring that the grand jury "unanimously recommends that our board of supervisors adopt the attached anti-picketing ordinance."

Including clauses of the original ordinance which prohibits loitering, standing or sitting in the entrance of any church, hall, theater or place of assembly so as to obstruct entrance also prohibits loitering on side walks, public highways, alleys or crosswalks for the purpose of obstructing free passage of persons or vehicles. It also includes clauses aimed at prevention of rioting and violence such as marked the fruit pickers' strike last July. It also forbids parades formed for the purpose of inducing, coercing or intimidating any one from carrying on their employment and forbids the hurling of epithets, use gestures or make demonstrations of any kind in an effort to make anyone quit their employment.

The Christmas spirit prevails in the Santa Ana offices of WPA. A brilliantly lighted Christmas tree, today, was installed in the office of Dan Mulherron, which also is the general office of the organization. Centered on a table the tree, reaching more than six feet in the air has been brilliantly lighted and decorated with ornaments. Miss Angie Legakes, secretary to Mulherron, Kemp Keeler and Mulherron, assisted by others of the administrative force, were responsible for the tree and its decoration.

The Rev. Gene Arnett will be the speaker at a special young people's service to be held tonight at 7:30 o'clock at the Full Gospel Assembly, 1600 West Third street. According to E. L. ## CUBA'S LEADER MAY BE OUSTED

HAVANA, Dec. 18.—(UP)—Impeachment of President Miguel Mariano Gomez on charges of "maladministration" was considered in an all night meeting of congressional leaders but no decision was reached, the United Press learned today.

The move to oust the president climaxed a feud between Gomez and Col. Fulgencio Batista, Cuba's military strong man, steadily gaining ground since the president took office last May.

The discussions last night centered around the number of votes that could be mustered in the house of representatives to sustain a bill of impeachment if that decision should be reached. It was disclosed that the Batista supporters could depend on 108 votes, but needed 110, the two thirds membership required. Some congressmen believed the other votes could be lined up.

Before they meet again an attempt will be made to pledge other congressmen to the impeachment program. If successful, proponents of the plan then expect to take official action.

MAN GETS SECOND DEATH SENTENCE

Natividad Valenzuela, 24-year-old Delhi Mexican, convicted of murdering his 17-year-old bride, Jovita, in an irrigation ditch east of Delhi last May 2 was today for the second time sentenced to be "hanged by the neck until dead."

The date of execution was set for January 22 at San Quentin by Superior Judge James L. Allen.

The first execution date, last August 23, was set aside by automatic appeal proceedings, under a

POPPY PROJECT APPROVED BY REALTY BOARD

Whole-hearted financial support of Santa Ana's poppy-planting project, and eradication of unsightly places and business establishments on routes traversed by incoming or outgoing motor traffic, were two of the main endorsements of the local Realty Board in regular session this noon at the Rosemore cafe.

The board voted unanimously to donate $30 to the beautification project.

W. C. Hill, president of the organization, was in charge of the meeting, the greatest time of which was occupied by a discussion of phases of the state realty board's legislative program in 1937.

A report on this program was presented by William F. Croddy, chairman of the group in charge.

Mrs. Marie J. Gotthard, program committee chairman for the board's inaugural, reported the inauguration ceremonies would be held at noon Friday, Jan. 15, at the Green Cat cafe.

"We would be subjected to a constant bombardment of shooting stars, if the earth had no atmosphere," Or if Hollywood launched another G-man series.

The higher court affirmed the conviction and death sentence last November 10, and recently filed its findings with superior court.

Valenzuela was not in court today to hear his doom pronounced again, having been in San Quentin since his first sentence. His attorney, Harry C. Westover, represented him in court.

gressive beautification plans in the history of this type of work in the city, the project had its inception nearly a month ago when Robert G. Tutthill called a meeting of civic-minded women, found enthusiastic support from various clubs and organizations.

As the project gained momentum, its objects were outlined in city schools and before service clubs, and Monday was set aside as the day that poppy seeds will be sold to the public.

Mayor In Statement
A formal statement to this effect from Mayor Fred C. Rowland, is as follows:

"That our city of Santa Ana may become a still more attractive place in which to live, and in order to make our parkways and unimproved lots more in keeping with the well kept appearance of the improved portion of the city, a group of forward looking and civic conscious citizens have proposed a unified action in planting poppy seeds that the bare and unsightly plots may blossom for the pleasure of all those who make their homes here and the stranger within our confines.

"In approval of the plan developed, I am glad to call on our citizenry to cooperate in this movement, obtain the seeds which have been prepared for distribution and do hereby designate Monday, December 21, 1936, as the day that concerted action shall be taken under the direction and supervision of the committee in charge of this planting program."

HOLD INQUEST INTO SYFERT DEATH TODAY

DEATH NOTICES*A WORD OF COMFORT

An act unworthy of your best self can not be excused on the ground that you are obedient to an elemental instinct. This would be an admission that you have retrograded to a plane where inherited or cultivated ideals have ceased to function in your life. It would be an arraignment of your parents, your loved ones and your friends for they have helped you to develop the compelling ideals which should control, purify and subliminate the lower impulses.

You have the power to be true to the best that is in you, if you will. Let neither pain nor grief tempt you to be willingly a churl, a coward or a defeated spirit. You are destined to triumph over every weakness.

SEELYE—Funeral services for Jerome C. Seelye were held at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon in the chapel of Brown and Wagner Funeral home, 116 West Seventeenth street. The Rev. Harry E. Owings of the First Baptist Church officiated. Interment followed in Westminster Memorial Park cemetery.

Birch; one daughter, Mrs. Grace Irene Wren of this city; one son, Don G. Collins, of Tustin; one grandchild, Jack Wren, and two brothers, W. H. Porter Jr., of Phoenix, Ariz., and Anson Gould, of Los Angeles. Services will be held Saturday, December 19 at 10 a. m. from the chapel of the Winchester Mortuary, 609 N. Main St. with the Rev. C. D. ## TRAILER MEET WILL BE HELD IN BEACH CITY

Plans for the first annual Southern California Trailer convention, to be held in Huntington Beach, are being made by William Gallienne, secretary of the chamber of commerce in that city, and W. J. Ebert, operator of the Sea Breeze Trailer camp. It is planned to hold the convention in the spring.

Gallienne said that the municipal trailer camp and the one operated by Ebert, combined, are capable of accommodating 1000 house cars. With both camps located along the ocean front it is expected that the convention will lure visitors from all sections of the country. Gallienne said that the convention is being planned for the purpose of publicizing Huntington Beach as the "Trailer City of the West."

He said that plans are being made to entertain the visitors during the convention and that literature is being sent to all states publicizing the event. The co-operation of trailer manufacturers has been assured with the manufacturers working with the committee to make the event one of nation-wide interest.

Hawaii to Get Oriental Lore

HONOLULU (UP)—David L. Crawford, president of the Oriental Institute of the University of Hawaii has announced that 25,000 books, representing one of the finest collections in the United States of Oriental writing, has been obtained for the library of the institute.

While still in the formative stage, the institute expects to have eventually a staff of at least 10 lecturers and research workers, and will concentrate in Hawaii all available literature dealing with the Pacific area.

Foundation of such an institute in this city half way between the Orient and the Occident, first was suggested two years ago by Prof. Gregg M. Sinclair, its director. Financial support was forthcoming without delay from two local families, which contributed $25,000 toward launching the organization.

"Men like Baron Dun and Prince Tokuwawa in Japan, Lin Yu Tang and P. C. Chang of China, Tagore and Gandhi in India, H. G. Wells and Bertrand Russell in England are showing a great interest in the new venture," Crawford declared.

"They have expressed the belief that it will be a powerful factor in the culture of the Orient, by developing a better understanding of the strategic position occupied by this American university between the East and the West."

SANTA ANAN SPEAKER AT BUENA PARK

BUENA PARK, Dec. 18.—"The Spiritual Significance of Education" traced through an equipment centered school, curriculum centered institution to a child centered state was described by the Rev. George E. Warner of Santa Ana, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, at the Christmas meeting of the Grand Avenue P-T-A. last night in the school auditorium.

"Experience should be considered as an opportunity for the development of real appreciation of the practical, spiritual, imaginative, and other sides of life, according to the speaker."

A second production, a masque, "The Holy Night," was the offering of older students under the direction of the school music teacher, Mrs. Jack Litwack. In the group were Mary, Julia, Gugliemana; Joseph, Robert Houghton; shepherds, Joe Svogar, Dan Jackson, Carl Drake; three wise men, Leslie Briggs, Bud Smoot, Neal Ramsey; angels, Elsie Meyers, Lida Jean Wilkinson, Mary Jean Hillman, Betty Ware, Orah Carmens, Lillian Sellers, Mary Alice Smith, Geraldine Whittet, Angeline Mancho, Helen Hutchinson, Laura Belle La Rue, Constance Swain, Frances Lyons, Maxine Coffman, Betty Lou Grainer, Jean Kozio, Elaine Reynolds, the Halt; Stanley Brown, the Raven, Melvin Turner; the Lame, Charles Pike; and the voice of the ox and the donkey, Jimmy Leech.

THOMAS GLENN TELLS ABOUT BANQUET WITH "BAD BOY" OF CHINA IN SUMMER OF 1928

By HERBERT GULICK

Chang Hsueh-Liang, China's "bad boy" who recently startled the world by kidnapping Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek was the host at a banquet attended by Thomas H. Glenn of the Santa Ana Junior college faculty in the summer of 1928.

And it was a 32 course banquet at that.

"Upon arriving in Mukden, then capital of Manchuria, our party which included McKee Plisk, former dean of men at the local college, was extended an invitation by the young war lord to a reception at his palace and a banquet at Mukden's leading restaurant. Needless to say, we accepted," Glenn related.

The following morning, the American teachers and students who position of a north China war lord. His father, Chang Tso-Lin, was known as the master of north China. Young Chang by outward appearance resembled a Chinese student in our American universities. "Innocent and harmless," are the words descriptive of the Chinese rebel when we saw him," Glenn said.

At the restaurant Chang's guests enjoyed 32 courses served in the approved Chinese style. The eating and drinking lasted all afternoon. Ancient eggs and bird nest soup were the most unusual dishes. According to Glenn the eggs were several years old, pickled and decidedly black.

"Some of the party were daunted by the appearance and content of the food served and refused to eat it. However, Plisk and I ate something of every course and tabulated them as they were served. More food was placed before me in that meal than I had ever had before at one sitting," Glenn reminisced.

Young Marshal Chang was forced to abandon his castle and driven into northern China by the Japanese invasion of Manchuria several years ago. For that reason, implications that Chang might be backed by the Japanese military authorities are believed erroneous.

Today the world awaits definite word of either Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's safety or death. If alive, the agreement to settle "civil strife" is predicted to bind China in a united nation. Thomas H. Glenn today is disillusioned over the outward appearance of an "innocent and harmless" China war lord about 28 years old.

composed the party were taken on a tour of the palace and its grounds. The "Young Marshal" personally greeted the travelers from the steps of the palace. According to Glenn, Chang spoke perfect English flavored with a strong British accent, obtained from his schooling at Oxford University. He was attired in a white linen suit and was continuously surrounded by a large of retainers.

"Chang Hsueh-Liang at the time of our visit had just taken over the

DR. TOWNSEND SPEAKS HERE ON SATURDAY

Thousands of Townsendsites and others are expected to fill the high school auditorium tomorrow night when Dr. Francis E. Townsend, originator and leader of the Townsend Old Age Revolving Pension Plan speaks here.

Dr. Townsend is expected to talk on the new pension plan to be offered in Congress in January to replace the original plan which has been declared unconstitutional by many nationally-known lawyers, according to J. H. Walsh, district organizer for the Townsend group.

While Dr. Townsend is scheduled to discuss the new pension plan, he has been named in a Federal indictment charging him with contempt of Congress for walking out on a Congressional investigation, since arrangements were made for his local appearance.

In view of this indictment and talks made by the Townsend group leader, members of the local organization are expecting him to devote considerable of his platform time to a discussion of the indictment, its charges and what he intends to do about them.

Last night, speaking in Glendale Dr. Townsend declared that he would go to jail rather than pay a fine if he is found guilty of the contempt charges in Washington. Before 1500 people gathered in the Glendale Masonic Temple Dr. Townsend hurled his deft at his accusers and declared:

"If I am found guilty and fined, I will refuse to pay and go to jail. They will probably give me 30 days but I won't mind. I have a lot of work I could do, even in jail."

KEN Murray SAYS:

Flag Cruiser Ordered Built By Australia

CANBERRA (UP)—The Australian government has taken one more step in its national defense program by ordering construction of a leader for a squadron of destroyer cruisers, aimed to protect Australia against sea raids.

The cruiser, which will be armed with six-inch guns, will be built at the Cockatoo Island dockyard. While the outflow of having cruisers constructed in England will still be continued for a certain time, the commonwealth government has decided that the local industry has now reached a point where it can manufacture every part of modern warships. This was thoroughly proven in the recent construction here of two sloops.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—Say: It looks like China may need her famous detective, Charlie Chan, now that those mutinous troops have kidnapped General Chiang Kai-Shek and refuse to release him until war is declared on Japan. . . . It's easy to see that those Oriental eyes takes a different slant on things! We always thought kidnapping dictators would be the surest way of preventing war.

Of course, to a white man, Chinese politics are a lot like chow mein. . . . You never can tell what lies beneath the surface.

What I'm wondering is if the mutineers will strip the general of his medals, or resort to the usual Chinese custom of merely tearing the buttons off his shirt.

But you know, it looks pretty hopeless for the rest of the world when the oldest civilization hasn't yet found a way to secure permanent peace.

LIGHT TREMORS HIT PITTSBURGH

jarred pictures from walls and disturbed light sleepers.

But the seismograph records the slightest subterranean convulsion. And of these there has been an average of five a week—slight rumblings insufficient separately to disturb an ant, but, if taken all together, powerful enough to level the big buildings in the Pittsburgh Golden Triangle.

City in "Danger Zone"

Actually, the city is in the "danger zone," but the probability that an earthquake of major force will strike the district is slight. The man who officially charts earthquakes for the University of Pittsburgh is Homer M. Rutherford.

Rutherford recalled the disturbance of a year ago as the heaviest tremor to strike Pittsburgh in the five years he has been recording earth movements on his seismograph.

"We may not have another like that one for years," he said, "and yet an earthquake of great force might be felt here tomorrow. Such things are practically impossible to predict, but it is far from impossible that Pittsburgh may at some time become the center of a great upheaval."

Odds Million to One

It is about a "million to one chance," he added, that the city ever will be visited by a disastrous earthquake.

Rutherford's seismograph traces the rumblings of the earth on graph-like sheets and he reads the history of earthquakes from a set of jagged lines of varying length.

"Earthquakes are going on virtually all the time," said Rutherford. "But only through the seismograph are we able to determine their intensity and duration."

"The seismograph operates much like a radio. It has to be 'tuned' to the disturbance. As the radio has to be tuned to pick up broadcasts on a certain wave length so does the seismograph pick up earthquakes."

STATES TANGLED BY 'SPITE DITCH'

WHAPETON, N. D., (UP)—Because of a bit of spite war, nearly 80 years ago, a part of the state of North Dakota became a part of Minnesota. And due to the confused situation, owners of a tract of Minnesota land for years have paid their taxes on the property to North Dakota.

The mix-up came about back in 1850 shortly after old Fort Abercrombie was moved from its original site near here to a new location. As old-timers recall it, a troop of soldiers visited the fort at its new site. There were a number of Indians present, some of whom apparently bootlegged whisky.

At any rate, the soldiers became intoxicated and quarreled with the half-breeds, who routed them after several heads had been broken.

In retaliation, the soldiers argued themselves with spades and shovels and dug a ditch diverting the river from its regular channel to the low area on which the fort originally stood.

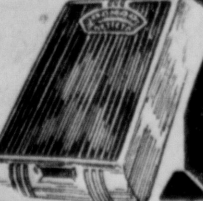

The stream rushed through the ditch and meandered through the lowlands. The channel has remained virtually unchanged since that date. As a result, a part of North Dakota was placed on the Minnesota side of the river. And since the boundary between the two states is the center of the Red River channel, the land cut off is legally a part of Minnesota.

The confused situation was disclosed by army engineers, who conducted a survey in connection with a Red River valley water conservation project.

BUCK JONES FILM ON STATE SCREEN

"White Eagle," a story of the bravery and resourcefulness of the pony express riders in the early days of the west, is the feature attraction on the current bill at the State theater. Buck Jones is the hero of the film and one of the most thrilling scenes is his hand-to-hand fight with a mountain lion. Barbara Weeks provides the feminine interest.

A Buster Keaton comedy, "Blue Blazes," a cartoon, a news reel and a chapter of "Custer's Last Stand" also are on the program. The Kiddies club matinee Saturday will start at 1 p. m. and there will be free ice cream for all members in attendance.

New Stars Seen As Coincidence

PHILADELPHIA, (UP)—The five new stars in the heavens merely are the result of a coincidence, according to James Stokely, astronomical director of Franklin Institute.

The stars known technically as novae, flashed out centuries apart, he says, in widely separated parts of the universe. The light of each, traveling eleven million miles a minute for hundreds of years, happened to reach the world at approximately the same time.

A farmer was returning from the market on a very wet and stormy day. He had with him a fox, a duck, and a basket of corn.

As the farmer approached the left fork of the little creek which he had to cross he found that the bridge had washed out. A little, leaky boat was at hand which would allow him to take one of his three burdens at a time across but he had to be careful not to have the wrong two together for fear the fox might eat the duck or the duck eat the corn. How can he work it out?

The chimpanzee now weighs three and a half pounds and its mother is a 150 pound specimen.

INDIANAPOLIS (UP)—Eugene E. Stacey, for several years a state leader in the Y.M.C.A., wanted his children to remember after he was gone that they were direct descendants of the Pilgrims. So into his will, filed in Probate court here, he wrote: "I wish to remind my children, Robert and Jean, that they are direct descendants through my mother of John Alden and Gov. William Bradford and I enjoin them to cherish the uprightness and character shown by those early Pilgrims."

"I hope my children will strive to serve their generation in the same spirit of their ancestors."

Jimmy Fidler in HOLLYWOOD

about reached the conclusion that nothing can be done about the hysteria which sweeps certain types of fans at sight of movie actors. No star today dares live a normal private life. Time was when Wallace Reid and Rudolph Valentino played at the beaches and other public resorts as do ordinary mortals, but that time has passed. Let Robert Taylor and Barbara Stanwyck stick their pretty noses into a public function today and likely they will lose them. Lose their noses, I mean.

No few readers (perhaps you) have written letters panning me because I have criticized what I term "summer tourists" who crowd into Hollywood yearning to meet stars in person. It is not the normal visitor I criticize. The fault I pick is with the tourist who sidles up to Clark Gable and makes away with his hat as a souvenir, or the visitors who nab Ginger Rogers' handbag (these two things actually happened). So may readers (who surely would not do such silly things) must not take my censure as personal. Believe me, the majority of stars are wise enough to appreciate fan followings, and are cooperative to the limit.

But the one-in-ten-thousand fan (the chap who tears clothes or takes valuables for souvenirs) has frightened the stars into hideouts and has closed the doors of studios against other fans who would be perfectly orderly. I have attempted to study this minority fan (he is more a fanatic than a fan) and am convinced that his actions are prompted not so much by star-worship as by the same bit of morbid curiosity

Katharine Hepburn's "insult complex" (which I have frequently termed a publicity gag all her own) develops unexpected twists now and then. Yesterday a studio press agent approached her for information about a dinner party she is planning. At his first question Katy turned loose on him with force, ending with "Why are you interested anyway? Neither you nor any member of the publicity department is invited."

White hot, the p. a. threw all thought of his job to the wind. "Who in hell wants to go to your blank-blank party?" he screamed. "I came here for news, and I wouldn't be here if the boss hadn't insisted!"

"Oh, so you don't want to come to my party," Hepburn said, softly. "Well, you're invited anyway."

I was seated on the "Street Girl" set with Lily Pons, while Jack Oakie entertained Gene Raymond and several workmen with a special Oakie rendition of "I Told You So." At its conclusion, Lily interrupted our conversation long enough to shout, "Now I understand why Oakie is a comedian."

CHINA HONORS OHIOAN

BERLIN, O. (UP)—The Nationalistic government of China has conferred the citation, "L'Ordre du Jade" upon Dr. W. F. Bohn assistant to the president of Oberlin College. Dr. Bohn, for years connected with the Oberlin College school in Shanai Province, received the award in recognition of valuable services to China.

British Count On 12 Million Toy Business

LONDON (UP)—The British toy industry is expected to enjoy the best business on record during this Christmas season.

Toy factories all over the country are working overtime turning out their products. Every day huge quantities of toys are being shipped to home markets and to the Continent. Estimates based on present orders show that about $12,500,000 worth of British toys will be sold.

One British factory alone is using 30 tons of steel and three tons of rubber tires every day in the production of toy motor-cars and similar products.

One member of the trade said that the British toy industry since the war has ousted foreign toys in all important branches of the trade. British toys, he said, are now sold in shops throughout the Empire, South America, China, the United States, and most European countries, including even Germany, "spiritual home of toy-making."

Hunting Reserve Open To Archers

DELAWARE, O. (UP)—On a reserve wherein no hunting can be done except by bow and arrow, 40 archers have staged their second successful annual hunt. Several rabbits and pheasants were bagged.

Hunters were members of the Ohio Archery, Golf and Hunting association, and came from most of the state's larger cities. One Dayton woman shot a rabbit, with an arrow straight to the back.

Girl, Blind Since Birth, Now Reads

HOLYOKE, Mass. (UP)—Born with defective vision, and heretofore unable to read, Agnes Grace Pavlica, 18, now can see, read newspapers and write letters.

Her release from dimness of vision was effected by telescopic or micro-vision glasses which she wears when reading and writing and when walking outdoors.

Since birth her vision has been about one-tenth that of a normal person. Her condition was due to cataracts. Eleven operations had negligible results.

With her regained sight, Miss Pavlica had resumed her studies along with normal-visioned members of her class. She calls her improved vision a "miracle."

WOMAN 102, BANS WORRY
SOUTHINGTON, Conn. (UP)—Mrs. Betsy Haviland, who celebrated her 102nd birthday anniversary the other day, is not superstitious and believes most people would live longer if they worried less. "I never let myself worry. Besides, what is there to worry about anyway?" she asks.

GUERNSEY COW "ANGORA"
PUTNAM, Conn. (UP)—Jacob Gurquitz found an "angora" cow among a herd he purchased and had shipped here from Wisconsin. The animal, a full-blooded Guernsey, has the regulation coloring but the hair is three times longer than usual, giving the appearance of sheep wool.

BIRDS HITCH HIKE
WILLIAMS LAKE, B. C. (UP)—According to Ed Bartlett and Harvey Graham, humming birds use Canadian geese as a means of transportation south. The two men shot and killed a southbound goose, and under its wing found a tiny humming bird also killed by the same charge.

TEXAS "RANGER" AN ALIEN
HOUSTON, Tex. (UP)—Imri Semendi, 37, worked all summer as a Texas "Ranger" at the state's Centennial Exposition in Dallas, but admitted to immigration officials that he did not know what rangers are. He faces deportation to his native Rumania for being in the United States illegally.

RARE BIRDS BAGGED
LODI, O. (UP)—A rare specimen—the dream that lures hunters to far lands—has been achieved by W. T. Wood of Cleveland, who went hunting on an ordinary farm south of Lodi. He bagged two beautiful white birds identified as silver pheasants, ordinarily seen only in exhibits.

RETAIL SALES IN BIG GAIN

ST. LOUIS (UP)—Credit sales are up 14.1 per cent this fall as compared to the 1935 figure, a survey by the research bureau of The National Retail Credit Association reveals.

The highest percentage was found in Decatur, Ill., where sales rose to a high of 36 per cent. The bureau, in checking 13,162 retail stores throughout the country, found business greatly improved in October over the same month a year ago. It reported an almost "universal" pickup in employment and generally higher prices for farm products.

Fort Lauderdale, Thrifty
Fort Lauderdale, Fla., a "city where unemployment doesn't exist" had the highest collection record of 45 cities in the United States. The figure was 25 per cent above last year's.

An average increase of 5.8 per cent in collections was reported, with Fort Lauderdale first and San Francisco trailing with a decrease of 3 per cent.

In explaining the increased collections in Fort Lauderdale thereport said:

City Without Jobless
"Collections in the Florida city were due to continued building activity and no unemployment. There are practically no able-bodied men there who do not have a steady income at this time."

Both collections and credit sales continued to increase in the New York and Pennsylvania area, the Association said.

Great Jumpers Favor Florida Hickory Skis

OCALA, Fla., (UP)—Though snow and ice are virtually unknown in this state, self-styled "the King of the Sun," a Florida company here daily turns out material for skis to be used for the greatest ski-jumpers in the world. Each week large shipments of rough "billets" are sent to European countries by the White Hickory Company to be converted into skis. Shipments are made to Norway, Sweden, Switzerland and Germany.

The hickory found in this section is said to be the finest obtainable for skis. The local company has been operating for six years and orders grow annually.

Dick Durrance, internationally-known skier from Tarpon Springs, Fla., uses skis made from Florida hickory. Durrance now is a student at Dartmouth.

HAWAIIAN AND U. S. TEACHERS EXCHANGE

HONOLULU, (UP)—Sixteen island school teachers this year are taking part in a "teacher exchange" program with co-operation of mainland schools, one of the most unusual developments in recent instructor training.

Oren E. Long, superintendent of public instruction in the territory, recently reported success of the new undertaking to Joseph E. Poindexter, territorial governor. "It is the policy of our school system in Hawaii to not only permit but to encourage our teachers to exchange positions with instructors in mainland America," Long said. "Under this plan new ideas are absorbed, new enthusiasm is obtained and a better understanding of Hawaii is given to school systems throughout the nation."

"These exchanges are arranged between administrations and not by the teachers themselves. After the arrangements are made, the teacher is given the privilege of accepting or refusing an exchange. Much attention is given to the selection of Hawaii's representatives and the plan has met with splendid approval by other systems employing our teachers."

Mainland teachers brought here receive the same salary as island teachers and the reverse is true for our exchange. No exchange position carries for more than one year."

During the current school year island teachers are employed in Minneapolis, Omaha, Phoenix, Oakland, Little Falls, N. J., Stockton, Cal.; Santa Ana, Cal.; Vancouver, B. C.; Waynesboro, Pa.; Moline, Ill.; Dearborn, Mich.; Portland, Ore.; Bellingham, Wash.; Corvallis, Ore., and San Jose, Cal.

MONKS SET UP RESCUE CAMP IN HIMALAYAS

AOSTA, Italy (UP)—Fears for the safety of the expedition of the famous hospice situated on Grand St. Bernard ridge, which was engaged in erecting a similar institution on the perpetually snow-bound ridges of the western section of the Himalayas, have been allayed with receipts of news about the expedition by the head hospice on the Grand St. Bernard, in the Valais Canton, Switzerland.

The mission of the monks of the Grand St. Bernard—a religious congregation founded in the 11th century—is to rescue unfortunate climbers who are caught in snowstorms or fall on glaciers while attempting to cross the dangerous pass between Italy and Switzerland. This mission is carried out with the invaluable help of sturdy dogs, especially trained.

The expedition, sent by the head hospice to the Himalayas three years ago, comprised two monks, Fathers Coquoz and Melly, a number of lay guides and helpers, and a dozen of the celebrated St. Bernard dogs.

All the members of the expedition and all the dogs are safe and in good health, despite the many hardships connected with their particular mission, according to a report from Father Coquoz, just received by the hospice headquarters.

The expedition had started the erection of an hospice on Mount Si-La, a pass more than 12,000 feet high, for the relief of the thousands of pilgrims who cross that ridge annually to visit the famous Tibet convents. Frequently avalanches or other high altitude accidents bring death to many of these pilgrims.

Nine Banzais and a Tiger

In characteristic costume, cap, fan, elevated sandals, and flowing beard, this cheer leader goes through contortions at a field day meet of the Japanese Federation of Labor in Tokio, as his rooting section gives nine banzais and a tiger for the team.

Ill luck befell work of the expedition, for the edifice, already built in part, was engulfed in a big avalanche and destroyed.

Undaunted, Fathers Coquoz and Melly and their helpers early last summer started the construction of another hospice at La-Tza pass, which is about 400 yards lower than the other crossing. The work had to be suspended when winter set in.

Experiment With Vines
This did not mean a period of lethargy for the expedition. Its members descended down the valley, in the large and fertile plateau of Siao-Wels, where they started several agricultural experiments, especially with cereals and vines. All the efforts of the "monks of the snow"—as the natives call them—have been successful, particularly with vines, which have yielded 54 varieties of grapes.

A peculiar feature of the expedition's activities has been its freedom from molestation by bandits who infest those regions. Having experienced the beneficial effects of the monks' mission, the bandits presumably thought it advisable to leave the missionaries alone.

The populations, thankful for the monks' agricultural teaching, are flocking in large number to the experimental fields to learn, and have volunteered to help in the completion of the hospice as soon as the weather will permit.

Soviet Bonuses Earmarked For Large Families

MOSCOW, (UP)—Pelageta Fedorovna Miroshchichenko, wife of a lumberjack in the Ayov-Black Sea region, will receive 22,000 roubles bonus as the mother of 14 children.

This comparative fortune, many times what her husband earns as a worker, will be paid under the new Soviet law providing financial encouragement to large families.

Thousands of mothers will receive millions of roubles this year under the law. In the Moscow province alone, 1,473 mothers with many children have already been registered. Eight of these mothers have 11 children each, 28 have 10 children, 108 have 9, and 325 have 8 children.

On the average, February is the least rainy month of the year in London.

150 YACHTS TO ENTER REGATTA HERE TWO DAYS

Greater Newport Bay is ready to become "home mooring for the Yuletide" of over 150 sailing yachts from major ports of the west, which will make Newport-Balboa their marine sports capital during the third annual Christmas Holiday regatta, December 26 and 27. Vanguard boats of the snow-hulled racing and cruising fleets are expected to drop hook off Newport and Balboa yacht clubs this week-end, Harbor Master Thomas E. Bouchey announced.

Up from San Diego will come a dozen sloops of the Pacific Coast, International Class-R Racing fleets and "half-pint" craft for the small boat phase of the big regatta. Donald W. Douglas of Santa Monica, commodore of the Southern California Yachting association, today said that three boats will fly the Douglas house-flag at Newport-Balboa. On hand will be Commodore Douglas' S. C. Y. A. flagship, the cutter Endymion, his six-meter sloop Gallant and the speedy little R Class dinghy, Misin, entered in the small boat regatta.

Both Chairmen James Webster of the racing sloop regatta committee and Harry Stewart, steward of the "half-pints," today reported filled entries from a score of western clubs. Represented to date are clubs at Santa Barbara, Santa Monica, Long Beach, San Pedro, San Diego and Mission Bay, and Lake Arrowhead.

Puck Dowsett, stellar Star boat skipper, has signified intention of racing in this class to represent Pearl Harbor Yacht club of Honolulu. A half-dozen helmsmen are to be on hand from San Francisco Bay clubs.

SAVE LIFE BY GOLDEN RULE

December traffic accidents can be held down to half of November's casualties in every section of California and human life preserved through immediate and constant application of the Golden Rule in driving and crossing street intersections.

President William May Garland of the California Safety Council held out this hope for life conservation today in inviting every motorist in the state to cooperate for a diminution of needless accidents and fatalities which are making state highways a shambles.

"The state press," said the veteran civic leader and safety advocate, "is one of the most potent influences in moulding public consciousness and the California Safety Council turns to it in this hour of holiday jubilation to urge both motorists and pedestrians to make the Christmas and New Year celebrations of their friends and neighbors a happy period. This is in sharp contrast to the picture of misery and grief that must afflict those homes bereft of their loved ones because of someone's careless, indifferent, or callous use of an automobile which can wreck havoc when improperly operated."

"It is within the power of every motorist," Garland added, "to help save one hundred lives this month by prudent driving and abstaining from conditions which contribute to accidents."

THEATERS PAY BONUS IN S. A.

The 45 employees of the Fox West Coast and Broadway theaters in Santa Ana will have a little merrier Christmas this year because of a bonus payment made this week.

The bonus, amounting to one week's salary is being paid to all employees including managers, operators, ushers, cashiers and janitors. The bonus was paid last night to the employees of the West Coast theater and will be paid to the Broadway staff Saturday night.

Payment of the bonus was announced yesterday by Manager Lester Fountain.

Bombproofing Warship With Flag

So that Spanish aviators could have no excuse for "accidentally" bombing the U. S. S. Hatfield while it was on its mission of removing refugees from war-torn Spain, the huge American flag was stretched above the deck where it could be plainly seen from the air. Aviators took the hint, dropped their bombs elsewhere.

FULLERTON MAYOR TO NAME CITY HALL SITE TONIGHT

Fullerton's mayor, Harry G. Maxwell, will announce at 5:30 p. m. today the council's selection of a site for the proposed new $87,000 city hall.

Although the selection has been kept secret, it was reliably learned by the Register today, that the new hall will probably be located at the corner of Pomona and Wilshire streets. This site has been favored by the Fullerton chamber of commerce, and is directly across the street from the Fullerton library and north of the Baptist church. For months, the selection of a site for the new building has been the cause of a heated fight among councilmen, chamber of commerce officials and members of other organizations in the city. This week, W. P. A. officials told councilmen that unless a site was selected immediately, no further time would be granted by the government beyond the January 11 date for starting construction. The government has granted $24,000 to the city for the construction of the building, and this sum will be withdrawn unless the council reaches a decision in the matter at once.

In making the grant, the government set January 11 as the date when construction on the hall must begin. Attempts by city officials to obtain an extension in time resulted in the ultimatum issued by W. P. A. officials this week.

A special meeting of the council was called for 5:30 p. m. today in the council chambers, at which time Mayor Maxwell is expected to make his announcement. Following the special meeting, the councilmen will participate in the dedication of the city's new memorial fountain constructed as a W. P. A. project.

CITRUS INDUSTRY SPENDS 30 MILLIONS FOR LABOR ALONE

Importance of the part played by the citrus industry in supplying labor for wage earners of the state was revealed by Paul S. Armstrong, general manager of the California Fruit Growers exchange at an annual meeting of growers of the Orange County Fruit exchange last night at the Orange Intermediate school. Willard Smith, president of the Orange exchange presided and introduced the speaker.

Pertinent subjects discussed by Armstrong of special interest to the citrus grower included the effect of the Spanish war on California citrus exports, increase of national buying power, increased citrus production in the nation in excess of the 10 per cent increase in buying power, a survey of living costs and of the citrus juice industry. The exchange head based his reports on national statistics and on observations made on a recent tour of citrus markets in the east and other sections growing citrus fruits. Many favorable aspects are in evidence for the coming year, he said.

Of the 150 million dollars for which the last citrus crop sold in the markets, 30 million went to labor, 18 million to grove labor and 12 million to packinghouse labor. Freight and refrigeration costs totaled 40 million, of which the speaker said, it is estimated more than one-half goes to railroad labor. Orchard supplies such as fertilizer, pest control and orchard heating accounts for another 18 million and material used in packinghouses such as boxes and processing materials, 10 million more.

One-third of the total returns for the crop went to growers, about 50 million dollars, Armstrong declared and out of this they must meet interest charges or return of capital invested, depreciation on trees, replacements and margin for profit and reserve. Interest on present valuation of California citrus orchards figures about 25 million dollars and depreciation on trees at 3 per cent is another four million, Armstrong said.

Demand Better

As a whole demand for fruit is better and prices are better, said Armstrong. Production of citrus fruit will be larger in 1937 than in 1936 and will be in excess of the 10 per cent estimated increase in national buying power, said the speaker, although this will not be due to an increase in California fruit where the increase matches the increase in buying power, but will be due to increased production in Florida and increase in grapefruit production in Texas. The lemon crop will be about the same as that of 1936.

The fact that oranges and other citrus fruits in all probability will be used in relief work the coming year by the government was brought out, 300 cars of oranges being sold to the government last year as well as 800 cars of Florida, Arizona and Texas grapefruit.

Living Cost

Costs of living based on bank debits and department store sales and using 1923-25, as base years, are rising steadily, said Armstrong and this is indicative of returning prosperity, the one trouble which might ensue being that wages of workers might not increase as rapidly as living costs.

In telling of his national business survey, Armstrong stated that any observer traveling in the east could see the return of business activity in factories and construction work, Detroit, Mich., being almost on a boom basis. However, Armstrong stated, there is a dearth of skilled workers, this accounting in a measure for the heavy relief loads in many cities.

The Spanish war activities have thus far been away from orange shipping and growing centers, said Armstrong, thus not increasing exports from California by

'GUINEA PIG' CAR TESTS DRIVERS

MILWAUKEE — (UP) — This city hopes to reduce its $30,000 annual repair bill for municipally owned motor vehicles involved in accidents by testing city employees in a "guinea pig" automobile.

The test "car" was perfected by city engineers and electricians under the direction of Dr. Sadie M. Shellow, police department psychologist. They worked more than three years to provide a test machine to determine a driver's ability to stimulate traffic conditions.

The driver being tested sits in a seat similar to an automobile seat behind a steering wheel. He faces a glass screen set in darkened walls. Behind him are officials besides a row of buttons. They push one. A green arrow appears on the screen and darts across perilously.

Tries to Follow Arrow

A second arrow is controlled by the steering wheel. The test for the driver to determine his ability to concentrate and to follow and his judgment of speed and distance is to keep the second arrow within an inch of the first arrow for 10 minutes.

To complicate the driver's task and to stimulate traffic conditions different colored lights blink from the side of the driver who must call out the colors and step on the clutch which shuts off the light.

Miss Dorothy Chapman, 23, blond and beautiful, who for six years worked in the Criminal Investigation Bureau of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police at Vancouver, "got her man" when she married David C. Thackray, 26. Until recently Thackray was a constable in the "Red Coats."

recording his reaction speed on a chart.

This test determines whether a driver has "tunnel eyes," the inventors explain. Acting Inspector Hugo Goehlen said that is an affliction of the vision which makes it impossible for some people to detect objects on either side when their eyes are focused straight ahead.

Side Vision Called Poor

"While driving along a street in which there is heavy traffic, it is necessary for the driver to keep eyes straight ahead," Goehlen said. "A child running out from the curb at the side of the moving car is often not seen by drivers with poor side vision."

By giving city employees who drive municipally owned trucks and motor cars these tests, officials hope to improve their efficiency. They also believe it would enable them to select more efficient drivers. All of which it is hoped will reduce the $30,000 which Howard Olmer, chief of the bureau of electrical service, said the city pays annually for repairs on city owned vehicles involved in accidents.

TOWN REVIVES CURFEW

CHEWELAH, Wash., (UP)—An old ordinance has been revived in this city. Henceforth every night at 8 p. m. the curfew bell will ring and youngsters of Chewelah must be off the street. The city council passed the ordinance when complaints came to them of much vandalism after dark.

Two persons between 16 and 21 go to prison every day because they are unable to pay fines, according to estimates.

TOY SELECTION BY SCIENTIFIC CHART ADVISED

CLEVELAND (UP)—Dr. Blake Crider, head of the Fenn College psychology department here, has reduced the problem of Christmas-giving for children to a science. The secret, he says, lies in being sure the toys fit the age of the child.

"Fashions in toys this year," he said, "are featuring creative lines—beads with which to make belts, watch fobs, handbags, metal-working sets for turning out book-ends, letter-holders, and similar gadgets; leather-working sets; electric needles to make designs on wood, and finger-painting sets.

Children Like to Create

"Psychologically, these things mean a sense of accomplishment, the creating of something new and original and useful. Perhaps even more than adults a child gets satisfaction and mental stimulation from creating."

For selecting children's gifts Dr. Crider gave the following scientific hints:

Babies up to 6 months like bright colors and pleasing sounds and things that are soft. Suggestions: A big red balloon or brightly colored doll tied to the bed. For 6 to 12 months there is a desire to grasp and bang. Suggestions: An unbreakable and brightly-colored rattle; for the bath, floating balls and animals. All toys should be unbreakable, washable, large enough so the baby cannot swallow them.

Between 2 and 5 years, the child is exploring, pounding, taking things apart. Suggestions: Pounding boards, hammer and nail sets, wooden trains that can be taken apart and peg villages.

Initiative Urge Begins Early

Initiative and dramatic play begins at these ages. Give dolls, vacuum sweepers, grocery stores, telephones, floating ships, crayons, modeling clay, colored blocks, cut-out books, bean bags, bugles, drums, horns.

From 6 to 10 years: More complicated building sets; Indian cowboy, and police suits; trucks, electric trains; basket-weaving materials; graphoscopes for copying maps, portraits, pictures; craft sets and athletic equipment.

From 10 to 13 years, toys must appeal more to the child's intellect. Suggestions: Metal workshops, photo supplies, carpentry sets, sewing machines for girls, bead-weaving and hooked rug sets, soap and supplies for carving chemical, biological and microscope sets and magic sets.

WEED CONTROL TAUGHT

BERKELEY, Cal. (UP)—The University of California has opened a course in weed control. The reason is that it is estimated losses by weeds amount to $80,000,000 annually in California and about $3,000,000,000 throughout the United States.

Woman Changes Name Legally 3 Times Daily

MATTOON, Ill. (UP)—The distinction of having three names in the same day is claimed by a Mattoon woman.

Mrs. Leota Berg was granted a divorce decree on the grounds of desertion and given the right to assume her maiden name, Leota Fulk.

Later Miss Fulk obtained a marriage license to wed Charles E. Wilson, 42, Mattoon, on the same day.

VITAMIN GLOWS IN LIGHT TEST

NEW YORK (UP)—Isolation in crystalline form of Vitamin G, the "growth factor" in foods, has been announced by Dr. G. C. Supplee, associate director of research of the Borden Company.

Dr. Supplee and his colleagues extracted the vitamin—which they call lactoflavin—from the watery portion of milk. "Flavins," without which growth does not occur, also are known to exist in eggs, liver and other foods.

Laboratory experiments disclosed that animals supplied with a diet from which lactoflavin had been extracted soon died. Addition of minute quantities of the growth substance to the diets produced healthy and rapid development in animals.

With development of their technique for extraction of lactoflavin, Dr. Supplee and his associates developed a "black-light" test for determining the presence of the substance in foods.

Solutions containing lactoflavin, they discovered, emit a greenish yellow glow in the presence of invisible ultraviolet rays. The degree of fluorescence indicates the amount of the substance.

Practical use of lactoflavin is yet to be developed completely, but, according to Dr. Supplee, it probably will be used first as "growth insurance" in the feeding of livestock and poultry.

Conceivably by increasing the amounts in diets fed to animals growth may be sufficiently stimulated to narrow considerably the time gap between birth and productive maturity.

The substance eventually may be used to correct human diets deficient in the growth vitamin.

There have been approximately 1500 biographers of Abraham Lincoln.

ROGERS URGES MONEY POLICY BE CONTINUED

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 12 (UP)—Discontinuance of monetary management in the United States at present would be followed by inflation, warns Prof. James Harvey Rogers, of Yale University.

The university's Sterling Professor of political economy declares: "Whether on gold or off, monetary management, at least, temporarily should and will continue. To dispense with it would, in the United States, mean inflation and in certain other countries a dangerous degree of dependence on outside influences over which little control could be exercised."

He points out the United States has played a leading role in the two most important moves toward reestablishing an international economic order; namely in its trade treaty policy and in the field of monetary stabilization.

Trade Prospects Bright
Under the sponsorship of Secretary of State Cordell Hull, our trade treaty policy was the first important step in the direction of breaking down trade barriers throughout the world. Its success to date has been slow and moderate but on an increasing and cumulative scale; and the immediate prospects for its further success are bright. Moreover, with the possible exception of the monetary policy, it has been the most favorably received and generally accepted of the New Deal measures.

Other important move in which the United States has played a leading role is in the field of monetary stabilization. Of the countries which left gold, we were the first to return to gold," says Rogers.

"In the further moves in the direction of monetary stability we were the first to be ready and the first to announce our readiness to cooperate with other nations. In the September stabilization understandings, it was the willingness of the United States to co-operate in this type of international understandings possible.

"In my opinion," Rogers says, "the importance of the stabilization understandings have not been exaggerated. In the absence of war they have paved the way for a gradual resumption of currency stability throughout the world.

With the return of monetary stability, the breakings down of trade barriers as well as of exchange controls will have become possible on a much more comprehensive scale and in a much shorter period of time.

Agreement Highly Praised
"Finally the ability of the three greatest democracies to (America, England, France) co-operate at this time in a policy of such far-reaching importance as that of international monetary stability is

Indiana Man Is U.S. Corn King

Ten perfectly matched ears of yellow dent corn brought the title of nation's corn king to William H. Curry of Tipton, Ind., above, smiling his happiness as he held his trophy at the International Livestock Exposition in Chicago. The 46-year-old farmer, shown with some of his prize corn, almost missed the show, due to illness.

a reassuring feat that has not been over-rated."

Rogers has made for President Roosevelt a study of the economic conditions and monetary policies of the world.

The forms of the currency readjustments in different countries have thrown some light on the possible future developments of the monetary systems of the world, Rogers believes. Then he asks:

"Will the world return eventually to a gold standard, or will it move farther and farther away from gold toward a purely managed currency? This is the monetary question most frequently asked by the financial and business communities today. I have personally raised the question in many parts of the world whenever I have found myself in a group of monetary experts, but is a rare authority who will venture a positive answer."

He points out that in the recent devaluations, Switzerland and Italy have moved directly to join the dollar group on a new and modernized gold standard. On the other hand, Holland and Greece have moved temporarily at least toward Sterling and management. The middle course has been taken by France in its choice of a gold bracket, but refusal for the time being to name the specific weight of gold to be used as the standard unit.

"Thus," says Rogers, "in the recent devaluations, the split between the dollar and the pound or between gold and management is approximately even, with the most important of the new devaluations still on the fence but with a leaning toward the dollar and hence toward gold."

Mounties End Search As Man Is Held Dead

WICHITA, Kans., (UP)—Martin Hein, who left an Andale, Kans., farm for a "short walk" has been declared legally dead after a futile search in which the Royal Canadian Mounted Police participated. Judge Grover Pierpont said under Kansas law it was possible to declare persons legally dead when no track had been found of them in seven years.

Pat Warnick of Wichita, attorney for Hein's seven children, said Hein left two profitable farms and considerable Andale city property. Several years passed without word from Hein following his disappearance in 1915. Then relatives heard he was in Canada. They enlisted the aid of the Royal Mounted, but that organization failed to produce any trace of him. Search in the United States also was ineffectual.

Anna Hein, wife of the missing man, died more than a year ago. The declaration that Hein was legally dead permitted each of his children to claim one-seventh of the estate.

First ice skates were made by tying the bones of animals to the bottom of the feet.

It Seems to Me by HEYWOOD BROUN

Randolph Churchill, England's ambassador of ill will, has gone home breathing maledictions upon our native press. I have known Randy, cub and boy, for 15 years and as he approaches maturity he grows more annoying with every birthday. It is an art with him, and since I recognize it as such, he cannot get my goat any more.

When first we met young Churchill was about 16. He was engaged on a lecture tour and went about the country telling women's clubs what was wrong with American politics, customs and cookery. He was even then a journalistic delight, because if any ship news reporter asked him what he thought of our skyline or the American woman Randy would tell him in no uncertain terms. I rather gather that young Churchill thought the American women looked best in a heavy fog.

But, of course, it was seldom if ever necessary to ask Randy. He was the first to volunteer. The Immature Churchill At the age of 16 I observed him in drawing rooms interrupting his elders and telling them where they got off. But it came to be so magnificent that you could hardly call it bad manners. It was Prone to the flapping of the vultures on their way home to peck at little Mr. Churchill's liver.

Distinctly I remember a historic occasion in the home of Herbert Bayard Swope. At that time I was in the employ of Mr. Swope and regarded him with great awe. In fact, I still regard Mr. Swope with great awe. Only for a space of some five minutes did he seem to me neither a god nor a devil, but a man. This brief deliverance from the thralldom of hero worship I owed to Randolph Churchill. He sawed through one bar in the window of my cell, and I tried to slip out but got stuck in the middle.

At the time Mr. Churchill had just turned 17. Mr. Swope and I were somewhat older. I forgot what the argument was about, but as a trusted employee I took no part in it. Suddenly the child-like voice of the young visitor smote upon my ear saying, "Herbie, you talk like an utter idiot. I could hardly believe my ears, and I turned my eyes. Mr. Swope was slowly and gracefully growing a little purple.

The room was bathed in that silence which comes before the crack of doom. Only on one other occasion have I experienced such a stifling stillness. It was during a hurricane in Florida, and it is called a lull. For the space of fully a minute Mr. Churchill and Mr. Swope sat without saying a word. This in itself constituted a new world's record, and has since been accepted by the A. A. U.

Naturally I held my peace and gripped the arms of my chair. I averted my face. At any second the lightning would come through the roof and strike Randy dead or Mr. Swope would rise quietly and strangle him. I did not want to be struck or held as a material witness.

Life Manages to March On Instead I gazed out the window, and to my great surprise pedestrians were going about their business as usual and trying to get into a speakeasy just across the street.

A well-remembered voice shouted, "Heywood!" Indeed, the voice said, "Heywood!" a second time before I jumped and replied, "Yes, Mr. Swope." And that was another world's record.

"Heywood," said Mr. Swope. "I've been wanting to talk to you about your review of 'Processional' for some time. The trouble with you as a dramatic critic, Heywood, is that you are always reviewing the play the dramatist intended to write but didn't get around to doing. I might add while we're on the subject that your column isn't holding up very well, and I didn't like your last couple of baseball stories. Besides, your book reviews are getting a little dull. I wonder if maybe you are doing too much work. I think perhaps you're staying in too late. Come down to my office around midnight tomorrow and we'll go out to lunch and have a nice friendly chat about what's wrong with your work."

"Yes, Mr. Swope," I answered, but for a fraction of a second I was almost inclined to give him a slightly more contentious reply, because Randolph Churchill had made him change the subject.

The Slightly Older Randy A good many years elapsed before I saw Randy again. This time we were on a train following Franklin Delano Roosevelt through New England. We were sitting in the dining car, and several other newspaper men joined the party.

I introduced Randy as a visiting English journalist to the group of White House correspondents, all of whom were pretty much fans for the President. Randolph Churchill acknowledged the introduction and started to lay down the law. Perhaps somebody had dropped a hat, although Randy never needed any such encouragement.

"I think," he said, "your American press is most peculiar. Your greatest journalist, of course, is William Randolph Hearst, and yet his conduct in this campaign amazes me."

Several of us nodded in agreement. "Yes," said Randy, "it amazes me to observe the way in which Mr. Hearst leans over backward in order to be fair to Mr. Roosevelt."

That broke up the debate. We had to shout for the porter to bring spirits of ammonia. Three Hearst men had fainted.

Foot-in-the-Door Salesman rapped

LONDON, Ont. (UP)—The old foot-in-the-door system so long employed by bill collectors to prevent doors being slammed in their faces is out here, according to a ruling of Magistrate Menzies.

Hearing an assault charge brought by a bill collector against a woman who punched him in the eye when he refused to take his foot out of the doorway so she could close the door, the magistrate dismissed the count.

"This would not have happened," the magistrate said, "if the collector had not had his foot in the door. A woman has the right to defend her home."

SPORTS WHIRLIGIG; NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

Lots of things can happen between now and then, but the tip is abroad that Russel Roquet, a robust redhead, will captain Santa Ana's Dons next fall. Roquet was a tremendous tackle as a freshman this past season. I know more than one competent observer who felt Roquet was the No. 1 man on Coach Bill Cook's stalwart line.

Roquet hails from Anaheim, nearly enrolled at Fullerton. Because his girl friend so planned, eventually the little lady changed her mind too. For half the season Roquet sported a bushy red beard that would do Man Mountain Dean credit. Eventually it won him a whiskerino at Anaheim. "Rusty" sister, Melva, is one of the ablest tennis players in Orange county. A year ago she won an important women's tournament at La Jolla.

"Rusty" himself had a checkered career as a high school footballer. As a junior he was just about the best tackle the Orange county league had ever known. But as a senior his work sloughed off and he was rated below Bill Love, a big fellow who had a good freshman season this year at St. Mary's. Roquet did not even make the all-league team. Some said injuries held him back; others thought he went to pieces after Johnny Ochoa, Anaheim's quarterback, was fatally injured in a game. If he did slump, Roquet snapped out of it in Santa Ana. He had backfield ideas when he started here but once he settled down as a tackle there was nothing to do but to let him play. The only backfield idea he perpetuated was to play in the opposition's backfield, which he did consistently.

They say little Bill Foote, the Saint coach, fervently hopes that Santa Ana will "abdicate" as the Coast league's jester next year but feels it would be unethical for him to take any part in the proceedings. Reason: He fears the public would get the wrong idea, suspect him of "crying" simply because his football team had a miserable season.

When Santa Ana Jaycee goes to Palo Alto next September 25 to open the season for the Stanford freshmen (the day the Indian variety opposes Santa Clara), the Dons will have Eastern conference company in the north.

Pomona Jaycee, quite a feeder for the Golden Bears, has accepted an invitation to play the California frosh at Berkeley the same day. The bid was tendered by Coach Clint Evans, onetime (1908) Pomona high school athlete and onetime (1915-18) coach there. Incidentally, Pomona has elected co-captains for its 1937 football squad. One is John Casey, the Red Raiders' massive fullback who earned all-conference ranking; the other Johnny Biller, center.

El Trojan has had its troubles steering the cream of the prep football crop into "Old S. C." for several seasons now. But whoever has charge of the "work" for Coach Dean Cromwell's track team is still in a class by himself. California and Stanford are babes in the wood and the Bruins get only the Negro boys, who seem to be persona non grata at Troy.

S. C.'s freshman material, as usual, is studied with prep school heroes from all over the country, and chiefly Texas. El Trojan was the first coast college to get Texas-conscious but the others are catching up. Stanford even went to the Lone Star state for an assistant football coach.

Cromwell's catches include: Mickey Anderson, brother of Cal's George, state champion at 100 yards for Muir Tech.

Horace Taylor, Texas prep 440 champion at 45 flat, and three other classy quarter-milers, Joe McCabe, of Mercedburg, Pa.; Frank Gibeau, of San Francisco Commerce hi, and Frank Albright, of Glendale.

Wayne Cardwell, Texas prep champion from Fort Worth, who ran 1:57.

Virgil DeLapp, a Montebello half-miler, who did 1:58.

Louie Zamperini, of Torrance, a mile, who was good enough to make the U. S. Olympic team in the 5000 meters. Zamperini only holds the world's intercollegiate record of 4:21.2. He's as good as the boys fast track of Bob Finch of L. A. hi. Yet Finch ran 4:28 in the City meet last June.

Herman Hermanson who ran a 9:40 two-mile as a high-school boy at Treboze, Pa.

Bill Sangster, Irving Bledsoe and Morton Bernstein, three brilliant hurdlers. Bledsoe was City league champion at 14.3. Sangster was a honey at Muir Tech where he was ineligible last spring. Bernstein hails from the inevitable Texas.

The bugs in the bleacher won't be chanting "Po-o-o-o Cromwell" for many a year.

HUSKIES ALTER PLANS. MOVE SOUTH AT ONCE

SEATTLE, Dec. 18.—(UP)—A sudden change in battle plans by Coach Jimmy Phelan will send the University of Washington Huskies south tomorrow—three days ahead of schedule—to prepare for their Rose Bowl battle against the University of Pittsburgh at Pasadena New Year's Day.

A second change will send the Pacific Coast conference champions to Santa Barbara for practice work instead of directly to Pasadena as first planned. Phelan said the Huskies would go to Pasadena only three or four days before the game.

Light work and skull practice today will mark the first resumption of work for the Huskies since their Thanksgiving Day game with Washington State and heavy work tomorrow, with all but Dick Johnson, regular end, in shape, will launch Washington's second invasion of the Rose Bowl in ten years. Johnson injured his foot two weeks ago when he dropped a piece of steel on it. He probably will be ready for the New Year's Day game, however, physicians said.

I asked Frankie Frisch, of the St. Louis Cardinals, who is my traveling companion, to try and determine our approximate location but he gave up after three prolonged stares from the window revealed nothing more illuminating than a brace of snarling hogs, a patch of pine trees and a bare-footed pickaninny.

I was grateful to find Frisch on the train when I boarded it at Daytona Beach, for I quickly allowed as how he would furnish me with an easy story. I'll just ask him two or three questions, I figured, and there my story will be.

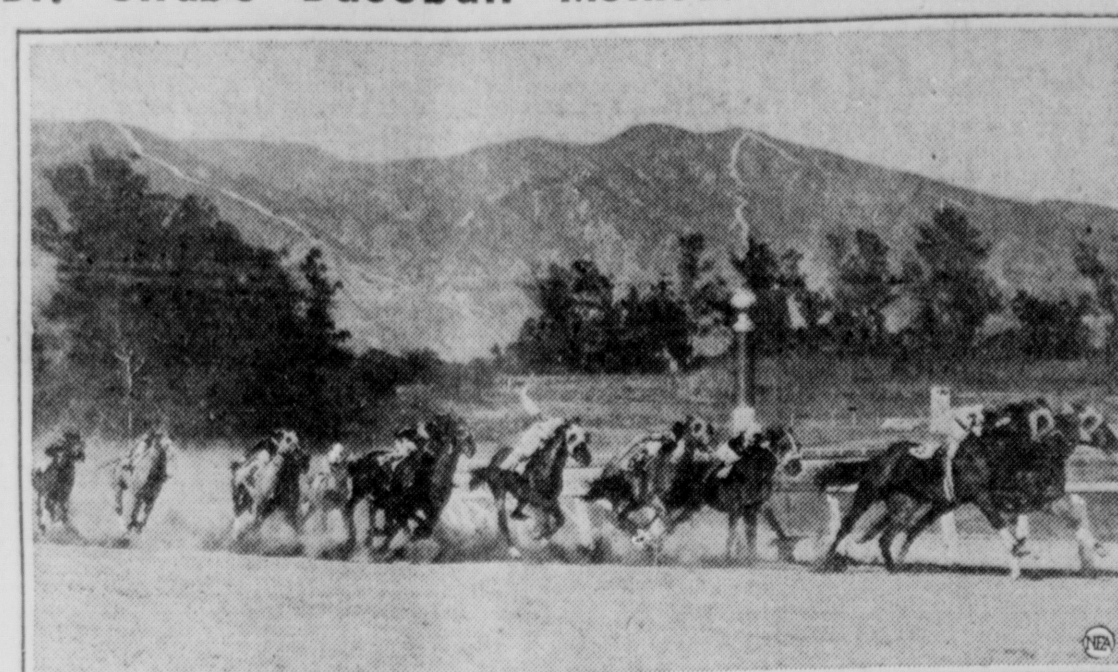

But Frisch didn't want to talk baseball. He wanted to talk boats. About his boat. About the boat he and "Doc" Weaver, the St. Louis trainer, bought in New York early in November and started for Florida in. I paid polite attention until he happened to mention the trip required a month, lacking two days, to make and then I lost interest. After all, a man can swim to Florida faster than that.

I tried to open the discussion of baseball tactfully. He was in the midst of describing a storm in Chesapeake bay when I said: "Guess you're mighty glad Ricky couldn't get rid of Dean, eh? Pitchers like Dizzy don't grow on trees."

"Lemon trees, maybe," he said. Then—with a laugh: "I didn't mean that. He's a screwball, sure enough, and as big a headache as a manager ever had, but damn it, he can pitch. You know, Dizzy has no business losing even so much as one game. I mean that. He ought to win every game he pitches in the National league, Hubbell's the only guy with any right to beat him, and Dizzy, if he made up my mind, could lick him every time out. And that's saying something. For that Hubbell is one of the best I ever laid my eyes on."

"Why does Dizzy lose games?"

'Dizzy' Shows Off By Throwing What Batters Like

BY HENRY McLEMORE

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—Don't pay any attention to that "New York" headline, because I'm not there as I write this but in the club car of a train stalled somewhere between Savannah and Washington.

I asked Frankie Frisch, of the St. Louis Cardinals, who is my traveling companion, to try and determine our approximate location but he gave up after three prolonged stares from the window revealed nothing more illuminating than a brace of snarling hogs, a patch of pine trees and a bare-footed pickaninny.

Santa Anita, which launches its third season a week from today, comes closer than any other to being America's model race track. The gorgeous establishment in the foothills of the Sierras was conceived, financed, built and is run by Dr. Charles Henry Strub, who was broke and looking around for something in which he could make quick money when racing was legalized in California.

Save for a disastrous two-weeks' whirl as a bookmaker in his younger days, Dr. Strub's only previous connection with racing was that of a player. In 1904, he attempted to combine advertising dentistry in San Francisco with bookmaking at the old Emeryville track. His book went broke in a couple of weeks and he never tried his hand at running anything on a race track again until he started to promote the Los Angeles Turf club.

At Santa Anita, Dr. Strub introduced photographic judging, with prints before the judges before winners were announced. Visional electric timing was another of his innovations. Motion pictures of starts will be made and used at Arcadia this winter for the first time and with the latest improved equipment.

The Los Angeles Turf club engages a staff of technicians the year around in order to be up on all inventions. Stable control and strict policing enables it to conduct racing on the highest possible plane.

Downtown pool rooms have proved fatal handicaps to many tracks elsewhere. Dr. Strub employs a huge number of private detectives who, in conjunction with the Los Angeles police department, keep them close during meetings.

Big-time racing. The Los Angeles Turf club put winter racing on the big time. No winter track ever drew the horses that Santa Anita has shown the last two seasons and will show during the approaching one. Horsemen have yet to fail to respond to purses, and Dr. Strub fairly slayed them with prize money.

From the coming 3-year-olds, Bottle Cap and the imported English colt, Arabian Myth, to the 8-year-olds, Azucar and Tick On, the greatest array of eligibles for the running of an event in the turf history of California has been named for the third renewal of the $100,000 added Santa Anita Handicap Feb. 27.

Eighty-eight nominations were received for the world's richest race. With the exception of Granville and Discovery, every handicapper of importance is included. And there are no willing, luckless campaigners like Equipse, Twenty Grand and Cavalcade cluttering up the nominations and building false hopes.

Of the coming 4-year-olds, Bold Venture tops the list, Maxie Hirsch is confident the chestnut son of

Dr. Charles Henry Strub, the man who put it over.

CORVALLIS, Ore., Dec. 18.—(UP)—Clyde Ellis, 14-year-old Corvallis youth who reportedly shot and wounded William Cahill, member of the Oregon State College football team, was the object of a wide-spread search by Corvallis police today.

The boy disappeared after the shooting which took place at the home of Moss King, his stepfather. Young Ellis is a seventh grade student.

Police charge the boy shot Cahill with a shotgun during a quarrel at the dinner table at the King home. Cahill was in a Corvallis hospital suffering from bullet wounds in the chest and arm. His condition was not critical, doctors said.

Cahill is son of Mr. and Mrs. William Cahill of San Francisco. He played guard on the Babbs high school football team, studied at San Mateo junior college for two years and entered Oregon State last September.

Another DiMaggio 'Graduates'

Vince Must Improve Mental Attitude To Succeed

By JACK CUDDY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—The brothers DiMaggio, Joe and Vince, will both be on the big time during the 1937 baseball season, and their diamond godfather, President Charles Graham of the San Francisco Seals, says "watch and see what happens."

Graham, a brawny man of 58 with plenty of silver in his brown hair, promises that the performance of Vince DiMaggio with the Boston Bees will be one of the most interesting experiments ever encountered in the majors, and it may prove the great importance of mental attitude in baseball.

The proxy of the Seals emphasizes that the stage is all set for this unusual experiment. Young Joe DiMaggio will be galloping about the outfield of the New York Yankees, while older brother Vince probably will be doing similar picket duty for the Bees. The Bees bought Vince from San Diego of the Pacific Coast league for cash, Outfielder Rupert Thompson and Pitcher Jim Chaplin. It will be Vince's first appearance in the majors. Joe is 22 years old and Vince is 24.

"And it's a funny thing—the way those two brothers developed out there on the coast," continued Graham. "Vince played in the Seals' outfield in 1932 and he had a good season. He looked like a great prospect for the majors. Then in 1933 his brother Joe was with us—trying to be a shortstop. And I want to tell you this—year-old Joe was one of the awkwardest, homeliest, over-grown kids I ever saw. We tried Joe at short for three days, and every time he tried a putout, he missed the third baseman a mile. After the third day, we tried him in the outfield, and we were astounded. That kid, who had no accuracy throwing from short to first, was actually throwing strikes, and Joe was batting right up, and he really went to town. Why, he hit in 61 consecutive games that season."

Meanwhile, the promising Vince—apparently resting on his 1932 laurels—slumped somewhat, lost the "old college try." It wasn't long before there was only one DiMaggio in the Seals' outfield, and he wasn't Vince. The Seals let Vince go to Hollywood, which later shifted its franchise to San Diego.

Vince was completely overshadowed by his brilliant brother, despite Joe's knee injury in '34. Major league scouts had been flocking around Joe like sharks until that knee injury came. Then most of them lost their interest, and Joe was sold to the Yanks for $25,000 and four players. "If it hadn't been for that knee, we would have got at least $50,000 more," Graham regretted.

"Now, I claim that brother Vince would have been a great ball player also—probably not as good as Joe, but great just the same, if he hadn't lost his alertness. I don't know exactly what struck Vince, but he suffered a mental let-down. Although Vince is somewhat smaller than Joe, he has the physical requisites of a fine ball player. And the only thing that's held him back has been his mental attitude."

Now we will see if a jump to the majors, and the sight of his younger brother galloping to fame in a rival league can inspire Vince, can spur him to mental alertness and make him try to duplicate Joe's achievements on the diamond.

VINCE DIMAGGIO Will He Regain 'Alertness'?

HOME FOR OLD BALL PLAYERS SUGGESTED

SAN DIEGO, Dec. 18.—(UP)—San Diego county supervisors today took first official cognizance of a proposal for a National "baseball cradle" and home for retired ball players in Southern California.

Although prevented by legal obstacles from taking direct action on a proposal to grant county land for the project, the supervisors gave the idea a pat on the back by memorializing the San Diego chamber of commerce to consider the matter at a special meeting.

The proposal was made by Joseph Dougherty, baseball coach, who contemplated obtaining sufficient land from the county to accommodate baseball diamonds on which embryo ball players could learn the game under the direction of former diamond greats. Dougherty also planned a home for retired baseball men on the same plot.

Santa Ana's Church league basketball standings were not materially changed last night when the First Baptists defeated the Midway City Nazarenes, 40 to 26 and the Church of the Brethren trounced the Santa Ana Nazarenes, 31 to 17, at the Y. M. C. A.

Dickey, Brethren guard, collected 14 points to lead his team to victory, while Teter aided the winning cause with ten.

The Nazarenes put up a brilliant first-half battle with the Brethren. At the intermission, the score was knotted at 12-12.

With Phelps, Baptist forward, connecting for 22 points, the Baptists put on another walk-away in humiliating the Midway City Nazarenes.

This was the Baptists' first victory since came after a hard fought first-half after which the winners held a slight 16 to 14 margin.

In fact it was Eustis, Ely and Phelps who made the victory a possibility. Eustis connected for ten points, Ely six which together with Phelps' sharpshooting was sufficient.

RACKET DRIVE IN CLEVELAND JOLTS POLICE

CLEVELAND—(UP)—A 32-year-old former G-man, who was the spearhead of the drive that smashed the Al Capone reign in Chicago, is giving the police department in this city of a million one of the most thorough purges it ever has known.

Elliot Ness became Cleveland safety director one year ago. Since that time, using methods employed by the federal bureau of investigation, he has waged a dramatic campaign against police graft. His most important single investigation culminated in the charging of 20 policemen, several of them high department officials, with protecting bootleggers during the prohibition era.

Young, energetic, forceful, Ness has made himself a popular figure in Cleveland through his personal cleanup of the city's rackets. Raids that have eliminated several gambling joints and vice hangouts invariably have been headed by the safety director himself.

Merit System Used
Besides setting out to rid the city of its rackets, Ness has made a number of reforms in the police department. Patrolmen are appointed on their merit. They receive physical examinations, intelligence tests, and oral exams by the safety director or one of his assistants. And they are told to disregard any hint of politics or statement that they must pay some official to obtain appointment.

Target of Public Clamor

(Radiophoto copyright 1936, NEA Service, Inc.)

"Resign!" "Down with Baldwin!" "Boo-oo-oo-oo!" The clamor of disapproval assailed Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin whenever he was recognized in his dashes about London to confer on the "constitutional crisis". He's seen here leaving his car at No. 10 Downing Street to attend the cabinet meeting that decided not to rush King Edward's decision on abdication.

The safety director's methods of investigation include a long and careful study of the situation, making use of several individual investigators, followed by the presentation of a documented mass of evidence to the prosecuting attorney.

The activities of Police Capt. Michael J. Harwood were the center of the most startling investigation. The captain had submitted his resignation with the request that he receive a lifetime pension of $140 a month. Ness refused to accept the resignation.

Heads Raiding Party
Then followed a raid, headed by the safety director, of a handbook in Harwood's precinct. The raid led to Harwood's suspension. A few weeks after Harwood was relieved, Ness charged the entire personnel of a precinct of protecting and accepting bribes from bootleggers. Nine of these men have been indicted by a federal grand jury.

Ness's investigation also allegedly involved Capt. Louis J. Caddek, who was convicted of accepting bribes from bootleggers. Caddek, sentenced from two to 20 years in the Ohio penitentiary, is appealing.

The resignation of Capt. Adolph Lenehan of another precinct also was the result of the Ness investigation system. A squad of rookie patrolmen, unknown to the rest of the department, was trained in G-man tactics and assigned to investigate the precinct where the safety director had received reports that a handbook was being operated.

Trap Is Laid
Ness tells the story himself: "The rookies entered the place, mingled with the crowd, picked out the operators and then made telephone reports of what they found to Capt. Lenehan."

"No action was taken. 'Next, I had a woman call the precinct to complain that her son was losing all his money in the place. Still no action.' Then a raid was staged, headed by the safety director. When the lights were turned on the rookies held nine operators, the raiders confiscated $700 in cash. Failure of Capt. Lenehan to close the place was called 'mere negligence,' but he was permitted to resign."

WESTMINSTER

WESTMINSTER, Dec. 18.—Mr. and Mrs. Chester Walker, of Long Beach, were entertained with their young daughter, Naree, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Walker.

A miscellaneous shower for Miss Camille Christopher, daughter of Mrs. Aethia Ryckman of the Westminster school faculty, was held recently at the Los Angeles home of the honoree's sister, Mrs. Mary McKinley. Miss Christopher is soon to become the bride of John Lester McFarland Jr.

Mrs. Luma Loomis, of Long Beach, was calling on local friends and former neighbors Monday.

Mrs. India Conard entertained her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. V. L. Finster, of Anaheim, and son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight McDaniel at dinner Sunday.

Mrs. Frances Hay and sons spent the week end at Piru with Mr. Hay. Miss Laura Blakey recently entertained her cousin, Elmer Worley, and Miss Maude Garland, of Redlands.

The Thomas Turpin family are to leave Westminster within a few weeks to join Mr. Turpin at Kettleman Hills where he is employed with an oil company. The Turpins plan on selling their local home and expect to leave for the north about February 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Cogswell of Santa Ana have rented the house located just north of Westminster school, formerly owned by Isabelle Penhall, and are to make their home here. Mrs. Cogswell is the former Phyllis Snow.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Dell and Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Davies motored to Santa Barbara Sunday as guests of Claud Hardesty, former local teacher, and Mrs. Hardesty.

Electric lights counteract the effect of damp salt air on pianos. Pianos at the seashore have lights burning around them for this reason.

400 FAMILIES GET BASKETS CHRISTMAS EVE

BY GERIE GRIFFITH

To many, Christmas means new presents and special celebrations. But to some right here in our own community, it means sadness. Anyday without sufficient food and warm clothing is discouraging, but Christmas day without the bare necessities of life, is pitiful.

Sometimes in our own happiness and contentment, we forget the less fortunate around us. In Santa Ana, alone, there are at least 400 families who need extra cheer this year. These families are not needy, they have enough to live on, nor do they need charity.

Capt. Lewis McAllan of the Salvation Army is in charge of providing for these families this year. Daily he receives letters from heads of large families, and aged couples who know no cheer for their Christmas. These letters, asking if there is a "Santa Claus," are a good example of the need.

A good example is included in—"Please visit our home this Christmas for my daddy is out of work and I wish you would bring something for me and my brothers this year for Santa forgot us last year and mother was sick and we just had beans and bread and milk for dinner."

It is letters like this that have to be answered in order to keep the spirits of the general welfare. These people are deserving; their position in life is unfortunate, but they can so easily be helped and encouraged.

Captain McAllan has been sponsoring a drive to collect at least $500 to aid in making up the annual food baskets. This year they are to be especially well filled, he said. They probably will contain meat, bread, potatoes, carrots, corn, milk, butter, coffee, candy, canned tomatoes and fresh fruits.

To the people who receive these articles, Christmas will be a day of salvation. Their spirits will be gladdened and they will receive new and refreshed strength.

These baskets will be distributed on Christmas Eve to all those deserving families.

Besides this service the Salva-

Strikers Get 'Three a Day' in Maritime Kitchen

Morning, noon and night a line a block long stands before this maritime "soup kitchen" on the Embarcadero, San Francisco, where striking maritime workers get their "three squares a day." Between 3000 and 4000 are fed each day, the meals being paid for in dues and assessments. The dining room is run on a business-like basis and serves 200 strikers at one time.

tion Army is planning a Christmas tree for the children of these families. No date has been definitely set as yet, but extensive plans are being made. Captain McAllan stressed that the majority of people have no idea how many children receive no presents on Christmas. There are many, and these will be taken care of again this year by donations from the public. Some of the toys will be new, a part will be made over, and some will be those sent in.

Besides these aids, there is to be a Christmas dinner given for about 100 single and transient men.

FAMOUS CLOCKS

By ROBERT KIRTON,
Drop the Clock Shop,
Santa Ana

Last week I wrote a brief history of Big Ben. This week I will write of Early American Clocks and their makers.

It has been said that printing is the only industry that sprang full-blown into existence. Johann Gutenberg's Bible, the first printed book stands today as a masterpiece of the printer's art. If we take this fact as one extreme and look to see what the other might be, we would probably find that clock making belongs upon that end of the line.

The first maker of time measuring devices (clocks) of whom we have any record in our Colonial history is William Davis, who came from England and landed in Boston in 1683. Davis was a member of the London's Clock Makers company. A David Edwards became surety for Davis and his family so that they would not become charges upon the town. Davis constructed a wooden long-pendulum clock known as a "Wage at the Wall." The movement was constructed of wood and was driven by an immense weight suspended on catgut. The movement and dial was encased but not the pendulum or weight.

From the settlement of the first American colony at St. Augustine, Florida in 1565 to the year 1860 covers a period of 295 years. During this whole time there were only about 850 clock makers in America. Of the two who came before 1700 we have already mentioned William Davis and little more is known of him than already told. The other was Evaradus Bogardus who was engaged in making clocks in New York City in 1698. He was the son of Evaradus Bogardus, a schoolmaster under Peter Minuit, who was governor general of New Amsterdam, and clergyman of the Dutch reform church. Young Bogardus went to Holland to learn the trade of clock making, and his work followed the Dutch style. The farm or bowerly of the elder Bogardus later became the basis of the Trinity church lands, and were it still in their hands they would be the landlords of Wall Street today.

The earliest account of clock making in Connecticut records that one Ebenezer Parmelee built and gave a tower clock to the Ecclesiastical Society of Guilford for the town meeting-house; it was installed in 1725 and Parmelee kept it in order for many years. By reason of his attention to the town clock he was relieved in 1741, from holding any town office so long as he continued to assume this responsibility.

It is recorded that in 1740 Parmelee built a clock with brass works for the meeting-house of New Haven, Conn. "With true Yankee caution the town officials tried out the clock for two years before deciding it was satisfactory and paying for it.

Almost 100 years later Barzilai Davidson received $250 for replacing this clock with a new one with wooden works. For $40 he took away the old clock, repaired it and as the story goes, set it up in New York for $600. Most lists of Early American clock-makers date Parmelee from 1725 to 1740. These dates are so fixed because of the Guilford and New Haven jobs. However, he must have been making clocks prior to 1725 in order to be in a position to build and install the Guilford clock in that year and his activities must have extended beyond 1740 since the town officials did not pay him for two whole years. At the time Parmelee (1727) was building the Guilford clock in Connecticut a clockmaker by the name of Avery, whose first name history fails to record, was building a clock in Boston. This is the clock that set Paul Revere off on his famous midnight ride and still hangs in the Old North Church, and is still running and keeping time.

To be continued next week.

SHANE READY FOR OPENING OF NEW STORE

Preparations today were moving forward rapidly for the opening Saturday morning, and the grand opening ceremonies probably Monday, of Shane's Men's Wear store, one of Santa Ana's newest business establishments at 208 East Fourth street, two doors east of the Commercial National bank.

With interior decorations and complete remodeling, including a new store front with large display windows, all done, a large and complete new stock of furnishings was being sorted and placed on shelves and in cases.

S. T. Shane, proprietor and manager, who for the last eight years had been in business in San Bernardino, where he was well-known as having handled good quality merchandise at popular prices, was personally supervising the work at the store. Mr. and Mrs. Shane moved to Santa Ana a little more than a month ago, and work at the new store has been in progress for the last three weeks.

There will be a full line of men's furnishings, including hats, shoes, shirts, ties and an exceptional stock of leather and suede sports goods. Shane also will have a complete line of nationally advertised work clothes. Shane anticipates the employment of at least two experienced clerks, and will be present himself to give personal service to his patrons.

"Our doors will be open Saturday," Shane explained, "and we have our grand formal opening Monday or Tuesday, depending on the speed of the work during the rest of today and tonight."

CHRISTENING OF MOTOR BUS BENEFIT FOR PHOTOGRAPHERS DECLARES "CAMERA HOUND"

By JOHN NEUBAUER
Register Cameraman

From all outward appearances, the christening of the luxurious Greyhound motor bus, "City of Santa Ana," was staged primarily for the benefit of the photographers.

With the attractive Lolita Mead, Chamber of Commerce membership secretary, in the center of the activities, it was, however, a bottle of champagne that was played up. Miss Mead was always instructed to pass with the bottle.

"Always with the bottle of champagne," she asked when L. S. Hoyt, advertising manager for the bus line told her to hold the bottle so that it might be visible in the picture.

But that bubbling bottle of sparkling sunshine had no chance to bubble or please anyone's palate. Tied with a dainty ribbon, it was dropped against the hub of the motor vehicle and permitted to trickle down the gutter.

Not since the prohibition days has there been such an exhibition of "single water." Then the law required it be poured down the sewer. And that's where most of the "white noise" belonged. But good champagne!

The small group that witnessed the christening was composed primarily of city and county dignitaries. Besides company officials who were present to furnish subjects for the photographs.

Yes, s'r! The actual christening was a secondary matter.

Why? The motor company's official photographer folded up his expensive camera and left five minutes before the bottle was broken. He had a lot of films to develop.

Another thing must have went amiss! Miss Mead forgot to say: "I christen thee the City of Santa Ana." She just let go of the bottle, wrapped in a towel. It broke with a dull pop.

It must have been staged for the photographers.

Virus Causing Common Cold Made Visible

BERLIN (UP)—An important step toward conquering the common cold is reported to have been made by Dr. Kurt Herzberg, of Dusseldorf.

For the first time, it is said, the infinitesimal virus bodies causing colds, influenza, smallpox and other diseases have been photographed, after Dr. Herzberg succeeded in making them visible by coloring them with blue. Thus it has been made possible to study the activities of the virus bodies.

The following description of the virus and its activities is given: Hitherto the infinitesimal size of the virus has made it invisible under the microscope and disguised its character. The virus body is comparable to bacteria in size as a cigar is to a railway engine.

By his coloration method, Dr. Herzberg has discovered that the virus bodies are so small that they can slip through a cell wall, after which they multiply rapidly into thousands. Eventually the cell becomes overloaded and bursts, the bodies spreading into other cells of the body and continuing their unhealthy work.

Scientists had isolated this bacillus found in influenza patients, but were baffled by the fact that the transmission of these bacilli to other people did not carry the sickness. It is seen now that both the virus and the bacillus have to work together, though it is not yet known whether they combine in harmony or discord.

POSTER SHOW SPONSORED BY COUNTY FORUM

A "poster" display, colorful, descriptive and original, at 114 West Fourth street shows the wide scope of work being done by the art department of the Orange County Forum. In charge of this department are two young Santa Ana men, Kenneth Harris and Baltazar Garcia, to whom falls the entire responsibility of supplying sufficient posters to "cover" the entire county for use as advance notices of the forum meetings and speakers on the lecture programs.

When it is taken into consideration that the forum talks change each week and that approximately 20 posters are distributed in every community where the meetings—a total of 13 weekly—are scheduled to be held, it is no small task to keep abreast of the necessary supply.

The work of these young artists evoked much favorable comment from Chester A. Williams, assistant to U. S. commissioner of education, Dr. John W. Studebaker, during his visit here some weeks ago and is a contributing factor to the flattering reputation gained by Orange county throughout the United States that this county ranks as "Exhibit A" among the 10 centers where the Federal forums are operating, according to Williams.

Miss Mary Arnett, now living in Laguna Beach, was a visitor at her home in Midway City Monday.

SOCIETY AND CLUBS

WOMEN'S ACTIVITIES

State Garden Chairman Announces Contest For Playwrights

Amateur playwrights among federated clubwomen of this community, will find much to interest them in an announcement of a one-act play-writing contest, made public today by Mrs. James E. Paul, garden chairman of Orange county federation of Women's clubs.

This contest now being publicized, is a national one, originated in the national federation of Women's clubs, and sent from the national garden chairman to chairmen of the various state groups. From Mrs. John Thille of the California federation, it reached Mrs. C. M. Deakins, garden chairman in the Southern District federation, and was transmitted by her to Mrs. Paul, who is making the announcement in the county. A prize of $10 is offered for the best play submitted, and since there are many amateur playwrights in Santa Ana and throughout the county, it is hoped that there will be a general response to the plan. Local interest in play-writing undoubtedly has been fanned by the annual One-Act Playwriting contest of Santa Ana Community Players' association, and since many of these writers are members of clubs affiliated with the general federation, it is hoped they will feel inspired to enter the race.

Rules governing the contest include that of membership in a club that belongs to the national federation. Only a hitherto unpublished play may be submitted and no play may exceed 15 minutes in time of presentation. Each entrant may submit but one play, and must enclose a self-addressed and stamped envelope if she wishes her manuscript returned.

The author's name must not appear on the manuscript, which must be enclosed in a plain envelope and then placed in another envelope in which the author's name, address and club affiliation are written. The whole thing is then to be mailed to the state garden chairman, in the case of Californians, to Mrs. John Thille, Rural Route 1, Santa Paula, Calif. All entries must be in by March 15 when the contest closes. The plays are to be on the general theme of nature or gardens.

New Home Dedicated To Hospitality By Friends

When Mr. and Mrs. James Muck settled down Wednesday night in their new home at 1620 Louise street for a quiet evening, the serenity was disturbed by a group of their friends coming for a game of two of bridge and a real housewarming party.

High scores in bridge were made by Mrs. Delbert Lewis and Mrs. Leonard Music. The hosts were presented with a lovely array of gifts for their home from the group, and refreshments were served at the close of the evening.

Those who shared in the evening's merriment besides the host and hostess were Gerald Edwards and the Messrs. and Mesdames Jean Edwards, Leonard Music, Earl S. Kent, Gerald English, Francis L. Harvey, Santa Ana, and Delbert Lewis of Orange.

Kiwanis Installation Is In True Christmas Spirit

That the foundation of the Christmas message is faith, courage and cheerfulness, was the major thought expressed by Dr. J. Whitcomb Brouger in the fine address which he gave last night as the dominant program feature of the Kiwanis installation dinner held in Santa Ana Community club. The occasion was the climax of Dr. Melbourne W. Mabey's highly successful year in the presidency and the accession to that post of R. B. Newcomb, and was a dinner, dance and card party in true Kiwanis tradition.

Dr. Brouger's fame as a speaker has traveled far beyond Hollywood and Glendale where he has been located for many years, and was fully justified last night. His talk sparkled with wit, for he emphasized the need for more laughter and perpetual Christmas cheer in the world and proceeded to fill his own prescription. But merry as were his stories, some of them dealing with contacts with his good friend, the late Will Rogers, all had the basis of courage and optimism.

His talk followed Dr. Mabey's introduction of special guests, Guy Gilbert, Rotary president, and Mrs. Gilbert; Miss Lena Thomas, B. and P. W. president; Rola Hays Jr., Lions club president, and Mrs. Hays; Dr. Nelson, district lieutenant-governor-elect, and Mrs. Nelson; Kiwanis President Jack Zinn and Mrs. Zinn; William Graft, president of the Santa Ana Community Players' association, and Mrs. Graft; and many others. Greetings to them were sung by the Kiwanis chorus with Arthur Cannon at the piano and Whitford L. Hall as leader.

This group sang at intervals, "The First Noel" with Richard Bassett as soloist; "Jingle Bells," "Viva La Companie," "Hark! The Herald Angels Sing" and "The Way You Look Tonight" again with Mr. Bassett as soloist. Dr. Mabey introduced the officers who have offered such fine co-operation during the year. Carter H. Lane, vice-president; G. W. Leive, secretary, and R. B. Newcomb, treasurer, with R. C. Raddant and his entertainment committee, Claude Knox, E. F. Ellstrom, C. B. Steele and W. W. Woods. He ended with introduction of George R. Wells, district governor whose privilege it was to install their successors, R. B. Newcomb, Maurice F. Enderle, R. C. Raddant and A. Fred Crowell Jr.

Inspirational Talk
President Newcomb's inaugural talk was inspirational indeed. He suggested the theme of "Work, work and more work," because of the advisability of concerted and dynamic action in developing and realizing the responsibilities of such an organization.

Introduction of the two "First Ladies of Kiwanis," Mrs. Mabey and Mrs. Newcomb, was a pleasant feature. Mrs. Mabey was smartly dressed in black with tiny veiled hat and chinchilla jacket and muffs. Mrs. Newcomb's pretty frock was in beige taffeta banded with golden brown at the hem and decollete.

Many Gifts
In true Christmas harmony with the banded poinsettias and scarlet tapers of the tables, the glittering tree and small evergreens of the assembly room itself, was an interval of gifts. It was Carter Lane's privilege to present Kiwanis gifts to the pianist and song leader of the club, Arthur Cannon and Whitford Hall, while Loren Moore made the presentation of a club gift to Dr. Mabey. Later in the course of the evening, all manner of surprise gifts were distributed, among the winners being Mrs. Arthur Corey, Mrs. John G. Mitchell, Dr. K. H. Sutherland, R. B. Newcomb, his son, Dick Newcomb, Mrs. Milo K. Tedstrom, Mrs. Loren Moore and Mrs. Otto Haan.

Gay and lifting music for dancing was played by Don Ricardo's orchestra, with the Messman sisters introducing a succession of clever song numbers, and Miss Esther Messman adding a solo waltz of grace and beauty. General dancing included the hilarious lemon dance, a variation of the Paul Jones, whereby wives of entertainment committee members collected donations to the famous "milk cans."

While dancing was in progress in the assembly room, bridge devotees were equally engrossed in the card room where Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Leive were hosts. First and second prizes in contract were awarded Mrs. Harry Westover and Mrs. Walter D. Ranney, while high prize in auction was secured by Judge John G. Mitchell.

Smart Gowns
The entire function was one of color and charm, to which the smart gowns of feminine guests added a bright note. It was noticeable that vivid Christmas red held sway, with a number of equally modish black gowns, several smart white creations, and a more limited range of delicate evening hues.

Mrs. Raddant was among those choosing black. Adorned with vivid scarlet flowers, Mrs. Leive also was in black crepe with white gardenias. Other pretty frocks noted among those electing to wear black, were Mrs. Charles V. Doty in taffeta with a touch of white, and who with Jerry Miller as her partner, won the prize waltz; Mrs. Harry Westover in cross-bord chiffon with a hint of blue; Mrs. Tedstrom in a hint of white, and who with Jerry Miller as her partner, won the prize waltz; Mrs. Harry Westover in cross-bord chiffon with a hint of blue; Mrs. Tedstrom in a hint of white, and who with Jerry Miller as her partner, won the prize waltz.

Mrs. Moore in satin with heavy fringe; Mrs. Rola Hays in chiffon and lace; Mrs. Paul Bodenhamer in chiffon velvet; Mrs. W. B. Martin in black satin redingote over white satin.

Mrs. Enderle chose delicate blue chiffon in Grecian effect with floating draperies from the shoulders; Mrs. Lyle Mitchell's gown of ivory faintly suggesting mauve, was accented with similar grace, full draperies of a pale violet chiffon; Mrs. Woods wore a jacquard patterned white crepe; Mrs. John G. Mitchell was in velvet in grape shades with rhinestones; Miss Lena Thomas wore deep blue crepe; Mrs. W. D. Ranney was in silver-blue lace; Mrs. Fred Newcomb wore ruffled taffeta in deep blue; Mrs. Haan's crepe gown was in floral design and Mrs. Sutherland chose a flowered satin with vivid jeweled motif including a choker effect of the bright stones; Mrs. Cannon was in delicate flesh crepe with silver.

Among lovely costumes in various shades of red, were the slipper satin worn by Mrs. Allan Vaughn Elston, accented with black; the ruffled lipstick red crepe worn by Mrs. Bassett; the satin worn with fur trimmed black velvet jacket by Mrs. Hall; the crepe frock with little tulle jacket in bright plaid of Mrs. Neal Shaw; the crisp taffeta chosen by Mrs. Fred Crowell; the smart little taffeta dance frocks worn by Miss Nina June Robertson and Miss Betty Hays.

Tomorrow Night Will Bring Club's Annual Holiday Dance

Tomorrow night will bring an annual Christmas party for Wrycende Maedenu club members and friends, who will assemble in the Y. W. rooms at 9 o'clock for a semi-formal dance. Lacey Swaine's orchestra will play.

Miss Jean Enli and Miss Rose Leach will be in charge of the serving of punch. Decorations will be in keeping with a blue and silver motif.

Girl Reserve Singers To Go Caroling Saturday And Sunday

Climaxing a series of Christmas programs which they have given during the past several days, Tri-Y Girl Reserves will travel throughout the community Sunday night to carol for sick and shut-ins. Requests that the singers stop at certain addresses to give their program should come from homes where there are invalids, and should be made at the Y. W. by Saturday, it was announced today.

The choral group, directed by Miss Clara Spielman, will sing at Orange county hospital Saturday afternoon. Early Sunday afternoon, the carolers will take part in a program at which Junior college Las Meninas members will complement their mothers. Sunday at 5 o'clock, the girls will sing at First Congregational church, and at 9 o'clock in the evening, the chorus will begin caroling throughout the city.

Craft Group
Opportunity to finish articles which they have been making in the Christmas craft class for the past several weeks, will be given Girl Reserves Saturday when a final session will be held in the Y. W. rooms.

Miss Roberta Nichols and Miss Margaret Fine are directors of the class whose members have been working on various articles in readiness for Christmas giving. Since Saturday will mark the close of the course, it is expected that a large group of girls will be present.

Other Activities
Several Girl Reserve groups met yesterday for holiday celebrations. Lathrop eighth grade members were entertained in the home of the club's leader, Mrs. Charles Crumrine, 807 North Broadway. Singing of familiar carols, Christmas games and exchange of gifts were enjoyed.

Lathrop seventh grade club held a party last night in the home of Marguerite Alvord, 726 South Broadway. Mrs. Dan Stover arranged the affair, which included exchange of gifts and other special features.

Jeanne Lawrence's home, 1002 Haliday street, was scene of Lathrop ninth grade club's party last night. Ruth Wallace read a Christmas story. Miss Margaret Fine, leader of the group, was in charge of party arrangements.

Along with their party last night in the Y. W. rooms, Willard ninth grade Girl Reserves furthered their welfare project, providing games for the needy. There was an exchange of packages among members, games were enjoyed, and dancing climaxed other events of the evening.

Her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Ridinbaugh of Wawaha, Ind., and her brother-in-law, L. S. Warble of Kendallville, Ind., are bringing a pleasant Southernland visit to its conclusion, and Miss Kurrie's dinner party was last in a series of similar affairs enlivening their stay.

The scarlet tapers that lighted the dinner table repeated the cheerful Yule note of the cotoneaster with which the buffet was banked. Covers were laid for the hostess and her honor guests, and for Mrs. L. W. Bassett, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gilbert any tiny son Bobbie, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Gilbert and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Gilbert. ### Christmas Shopping

By Helen Welshimer

A MERRY little trio clasping pennies in each hand, Made me stop and think this morning of another little band. Their eyes were bright and eager as they reached the Christmas store. While I watched them from across the street, as they came near the door. For they brought me back a vision of three youngsters of their size, Who used to roam the corner store a-searching for a prize.

WHEN our pocketbooks were slender and we had to practice thrift, And the corner store provided every kind of Christmas gift. A big red apple on a plate once took my childish eye, I was glad that someone marked it with a price so I could buy; For I'll never feel the raptures when I reach a fairer clime Of the day I bought a present for my mother, with a dime.

ONCE more a chubby little hand is slipped within my own; I forget that I am standing on a corner all alone. Our heads are close together and our plans are running high; There's a gold ring on the counter, and we cannot pass it by. Though our father thanked us for it, then, we could not understand Why he hid the gift and never seemed to wear it on his hand.

IT is locked up with his treasures, and its gold has turned to brass, And the years have brought more wisdom to a little lad and lass. But no Christmas gifts were given in all the mighty land; More freighted with devotion than that little golden band; And perhaps that is the reason that our money would buy more When we used to do our shopping at the old-time corner store.

SO I hoped the other three would know the bargains we had found, When we used to do our shopping, choose our gifts and look around. That they might reap the aftermath of Christmas hope and joy, And the olden love of shopping of a little girl and boy. Who'd like to take them by the hand, and slip through time's closed door, And do their Christmas shopping at some other corner store.

Display of Teen-age Pictures Features Guild Party

Mrs. Floyd Hubbard and Mrs. Robert Flippin had arranged entertainment of the afternoon. Appointments in gold and silver brightened the tea table at which Mrs. George Chapman and Mrs. E. F. Muscous presided. Refreshments were served by Mesdames James Allen, Mabel Farrar, Louis Lahr, Harry Spencer, George Perkins, Noel Berry and Morris McCain.

Bride And Bride-Elect
Share Guest Honors
At Smart Party

With so many happy events of recent date shared by two popular sisters, Miss Betty Rowland and Mrs. Wade Cargile, (Jean Rowland) it seemed appropriate that they again should share honors yesterday, when Mrs. H. T. Dunning complimented them jointly at a luncheon of Yuletide charm.

Miss Rowland is at present occupying the pleasant post of bride-elect so recently held by her sister, and will follow the latter in bridehood on the day after Christmas when she is to wed Terry E. Stephenson Jr. The two weddings, one in the recent past and the other in the immediate future, inspired Mrs. Dunning's delightful hospitality.

She received her guests at Daniger's where the luncheon hour was made charming by the Christmas motif applied to table appointments in the prevailing Yule scarlet and greens. Subsequent bridge play was staged in the Dunning home, 1637 East Fourth street, where a blue and silver Christmas theme is expressed in all holiday decorations. Especially lovely is the graceful tree in those tones, sparkling with lights and ornaments, and card tables were grouped in proximity to its cheer.

Mrs. Charles V. Doty and Mrs. George W. Miles scored first and second high in contract play, and when the hostess awarded their prizes, she produced two charmingly wrapped guest gifts for Miss Rowland and Mrs. Cargile. These were the smart little moire travel cases for toiletries, very appropriate gifts for both.

College Events

Buffet Dinner

Candles encircling a small glittering Christmas tree formed the center piece of a buffet dinner table in the home of Miss Viola Sharp, 1527 East Fourth street, when members of the Junior college, Y. W. C. A. last night gathered for their annual Christmas party.

It was a covered dish menu with 20 girls participating in games, dinner and gift exchange.

Following the dinner, a brief business meeting was held at which Miss Jean Mulbar, president of the Y. W. C. A. explained the organization's Christmas project. This project, she announced, would be the wrapping of all gifts which the courthouse will send out this year to needy children of Santa Ana.

Games which used Christmas as their theme followed the business meeting and combined to add to the appropriateness and hilarity of the occasion.

A fitting climax came when gifts grouped under a large Christmas tree in the living room, were opened.

Students in charge of the affair were Miss Jean Mulbar, who took general charge of the party; Miss Elizabeth Sturtevant who planned games and entertainment, and Miss Frances Bassett who prepared the menu.

For Alumni

In honor of their alumnae members, girls of the Entre Nous club, service organization at Santa Ana High school, last night held a Christmas party in the home of their adviser, Miss Marian Bruner, 527 South Birch street.

The evening's fun began when white elephant gifts were exchanged. A card game which caused the white elephants to change owners as the conclusion of each hand composed the entertainment program.

Delicious hot wassail made from an old English recipe added distinction to refreshments which followed the games.

As each girl departed from the gathering she bore the white elephant gift she had won earlier in the evening.

Supervising the party was Miss Peggy Paxton, president of Entre Nous. Alumnae guests included the Misses Anne Wytherell, Virginia Pritchard, Caroline Davis, LaYonne Franson and Hazel Schwarm.

You and Your Friends

Coming as the second in a series of recitals in which Joseph Ogilvie has presented his students this season, was a program Wednesday night in his studio, 1291 North Van Ness avenue.

Sunday School Plans

Instead of holding their customary party Christmas eve, children of Unitarian church Sunday school will join in giving a gala affair the day after Christmas for a group of Mexican children of the community, it was revealed today.

Plans for the post-Christmas party first were suggested by the Rev. Julia Budlong, and the Sunday school students will be joined by their parents in staging the affair.

Twenty-five Mexican children ranging in ages from a few weeks to 10 or 12 years will benefit by the party, receiving toys and other gifts, it was announced. From 2 to 5 o'clock will be the hours for the affair.

Class Party

With gay red and green paper ropes and Christmas bells hung from the rafters and a tall Christmas tree in the corner of the room, Mr. and Mrs. Everett McKinney entertained members of the Young Married People's class of Orange Avenue Christian church Tuesday night in their home, 1317 South Van Ness avenue.

As guests entered, they deposited their gifts under the tree to be distributed later by the Rev. David M. Sayers, acting as Santa Claus.

There was a short business meeting during which plans were discussed for the Christmas baskets for unfortunate families. Members of the class presented the Rev. Mr. Sayers with a desk lamp for his study, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles McIntyre, who have recently moved to Wilmington, received an hors d'oeuvres tray.

Chinese rummy and bridge were played later, with prizes going to Mrs. Cleland Harbaugh, women's high, and Warren Bramley, men's high. Fruit salad, cake and coffee were served afterwards.

Present were Messrs. and Mesdames Warren Bramley, Charles Morgan, Arthur Smith, Ralph Hillman, Cleland Harbaugh, Philip Gerrard, Mrs. Lucille Knight, and the Rev. Mr. Sayers, all of this city, Mr. and Mrs. Charles McIntyre of Wilmington and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Storey of Los Angeles.

TODAY'S FOOD DOLLAR
Meat, milk, butter, eggs, cheese, green and canned vegetables have reached new high price levels gravely imperiling the ability of the food dollar to meet your food budget. We won't go into the matter of "you must have" so much milk, butter, "protective" vegetables and fruits, and so on. The one thing that interests you, as a housewife, is that you MUST make your menus fit an absolutely stationary budget, and still give your family appetizing food.

How are you going to do it? Partly, by returning to the homely foods on which our forebears thrived and by showing a healthy curiosity about the possibilities that lie in evaporated milk, soy beans, cheap cuts of meats, and the tremendous possibilities that lie in acquainting yourself and your family with seasonings other than those of salt and pepper.

Every Friday, for an indefinite time, one budget-saving recipe will be given. Approximate cost of the recipe will be computed when possible, and always suggestions for what to serve with the dish. Today's budget saver is:

SOY BEAN BREAD

2 yeast cakes dissolved in 1/2 cup tepid water, and mixed with 2 cups whole wheat flour, 2 tablespoons sugar, and tepid water to make a thick batter.

Soy bean flour.
Cover the bowl and allow sponge to rise, whip down and add soy bean flour to make a kneading dough. Knead in soy bean flour, return to oiled bowl and let rise again, cut down, shape into small loaves and bake slowly while the loaves have doubled in bulk. Do not be alarmed if the dough rises slowly.

Soy beans, a staple food of China, contain a great percentage of protein, and a smaller percentage of starch than other legumes. As bread it is both meat and bread so serve it for breakfast, well topped with butter and jam. Serve hot cocoa for the children, made with evaporated milk, and coffee for adults.

The safe and sane reducing diet is offered free today. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope when you write for the diet.

Oyster Chowder
3 slices fat salt pork, diced and fried in kettle.
3 raw potatoes, 2 large onions, peeled and sliced into fat, 18 crackers, broken in pieces, 1 pint fresh oysters or 1 can of oysters, cut up, 1 quart milk.

After frying the diced pork, add the vegetables, cover kettle and simmer over a low fire until tender. Add the crumbled crackers with oysters, a good dusting of pepper (no salt) and the milk, which may be skimmed milk (at a few cents per gallon) or a tall can of evaporated milk reduced with water to make the quart. Boil up and serve in big bowls. The recipe serves four.

Chocolate Eclairs
1 cup milk scalded with 2-3 cup butter.
Stir into hot milk.
1 1/2 cups sifted flour and cook until paste leaves sides of kettle, 5 eggs, slightly beaten, stirred into paste by spoonfuls.

In making the paste, sift the dry flour into the hot milk, slowly, stirring constantly until the paste gets thick and leaves the sides of the vessel. Take off fire, and by slow degrees, beat eggs into the paste. Drop on cold buttered cookie sheets, leaving plenty of room between each spot of dough. (A tablespoonful to each éclair). Bake 31 minutes in an angle food oven, oven (250-275 degrees) or until all moisture has dried out. Cool before cutting open one side to fill with custard or whipped cream, and ice tops with powdered sugar chocolate frosting. The recipe makes two dozen eclairs.

The guests were all from Tacoma and were friends of Mrs. Ralph's girlhood days in the northern state. They included Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Mohrbauser with Mr. Mohrbauser's sister, Mrs. P. Kahlenborn, and her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Thompson. Mrs. Thompson and Mrs. Ralph were school-girls together and the whole group represented a close family friendship.

Jester, following the appeal of Legionnaire Harold Reed, desired information as to the disposition of funds used in float construction. Reed offered to show Jester paid bills, covering last year's float, far in excess of the nominal total involved.

The HOLIDAY MYSTERY

By IDA R. GLEASON
© 1936, NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

BOB GRAHAM, the salesman, driving over a desert road in New Mexico during a snow storm, is halted by an accident to his car. Two strangers, RAMON VASQUEZ and ANGELIQUE ABEYTA, invite him to go with them. Ramon and Angelique are on their way to the de Forest hacienda, "Thunder Mesa," for a Christmas party.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER III

CHRISTMAS dawned, dark and lowering. The family did not meet for breakfast, since trays were sent to each room. Bob tried to talk to the stolid Mexican who brought him, but the man either could not or would not answer his questions. However, the meal was well served and hot, and when the servant went away with his soft, shuffling steps, Bob felt more optimistic.

Perhaps his misgivings of the night before were all unfounded. Living up here, all alone on the mesa, was enough to make any family seem a bit strange. Certainly nothing had been left undone to make Bob himself comfortable. He liked his young host, Pearl John. "Put him any place where he had half a chance," Bob thought, "and he'd prove a pretty good egg."

Bob arose and dressed, deciding to have a look around the place, even if the others of the household were not yet stirring. Perhaps Betty Welch would be up and he could talk to her. Bob whistled softly as he brushed his hair. There was a girl he'd like to know better! None of the fur and claws about her that there was about Angelique.

The snow had stopped falling when he went outside, but the clouds hung so low they gave the effect of a dark curtain. Bob shivered, though he did not feel especially cold.

"Rummy place," he muttered as he looked up at the bare snow-covered mesa. Only a few huge rocks broke the flat expanse. Why in the world should anyone want to build a house up here, he wondered.

The house was adobe, very large, and seemed to hunch menacingly against the gloomy sky. It was Spanish-type, built around several courtyards, all of which were enclosed in high adobe walls, with innumerable verandas connecting the rooms. Servants' quarters and kitchens seemed to take up the back portion. He could hear the soft voices of the Mexican servants as they padded in and out of the yard that seemed to be their particular enclosure. Curls of smoke rose from the chimneys in that part. Evidently fires had not yet been started in the front rooms. Guests at Thunder Mesa probably were not expected to get up very early. Bob decided to go inside and look around. Maybe Betty—lacked what warmth and cheer the firelight and candles had given them. Huge hand-hewn wooden rafters spanned the ceilings, and the gray walls were ornamented with bronze sconces holding candles. In little niches here and there were some really fine examples of ancient Santos—the hideous, emaciated little religious figures which the early friars put in their churches. Tanned skins and excellent Indian blankets covered the floors.

SEEN in the cold daylight, the living quarters of the hacienda

But footsteps were coming down the hall. Bob turned, as Betty's bright face appeared around the doorway.

"Oh you!" she exclaimed with a little laugh. "Merry Christmas! I was just wondering if anyone would be up so I could say it."

"I was hoping to see you," he told her. "Can you spare me a few minutes now? This may be Christmas, but those evergreens I look about as cheerful in here as they would on a tomb. Come on in and talk to me."

HE led her to a window seat and pushed a cushion, made of an Indian saddle blanket, behind her. "Now this is better," he looked at her admiringly. "I've been wondering about what you said last night. Not much chance to talk with the wind whistling down your neck and your feet freezing. If you could be a little more explicit maybe I can get a better lineup on the situation. You see, all this has happened so unexpectedly; my mind was doing a flip-flop last night and maybe I didn't get it over to you that I'm really anxious to help you if I can."

"I'm sure you are," she answered, "I've been wondering about you, too. You said last night you aren't here as a guest."

"Just an honest tree salesman, trying to get along," he explained, and went on to tell her about Ramon Vasquez picking him up on the canyon road.

Betty smiled, then sobered as she moved nearer and lowered her voice. "As I told you last night, I got this job through an agency in Santa Fe. I was a stranger there and had to get something to do. You see, I brought a friend out for her health, and we had only been there a few days when she died."

A shadow passed over the girl's face. "I didn't have much money left. That's why I was glad to come here. But now—well, I must get away, though they're awfully nice to me, and Tante Josephine seems to like me."

"Pearl John didn't seem to exactly dislike you, either," he reminded her.

"He's very nice," she went on hurriedly, "but the others—and this place—give me the creeps."

She brushed back the bright curls from her forehead and laughed nervously. "That's why I asked you to take me away."

"And, remember, I promised I would," Bob patted her hand reassuringly.

"AS I said last night," Betty went on, "I'm almost sure my mail is intercepted. I haven't had a letter since I came. And every time I suggest that they get someone else to take my place, there is some excuse made why I should stay. I've been here on the mesa a whole month now without seeing anyone from the outside until Pearl John decided to have this Christmas party."

"He doesn't seem much like the other brothers," Bob remarked.

"He's not, and he only stays because they keep him here. I'm sure he'd like to get away, too. But Pearl Sam seems to have some strange hold over him. I can't understand it."

"He's the oldest, isn't he?" asked Bob. "The one who wears that odd signet ring on the little finger of his right hand? It cut my finger when I shook hands with him last night." He rubbed the sore spot as she spoke.

She nodded. "He's the head of the household, and, except with old Tante Josephine, the only one who dares to defy him, he is a regular despot, though he goes at it quietly. He seems to take full charge of all the expenses of the house. Apparently the other brothers are dependent on him for their allowances, though what they need money for up here, I wouldn't know! You can see they have plenty and live very well. Pearl John hasn't spared expense on the party he's going to give tonight either, but generally Pearl Sam pays for everything and tells everybody on the place what to do."

"The Professor, too?" Bob asked. "Is he here all the time?"

"No. He's only been here since I came. He goes poking about over the mesa, making measurements of things. I think he's writing a book on some scientific subject. He and Pearl Sam discuss things together a good deal."

"Well, there are probably a lot of nuts in this world, only you don't usually see 'em bunched up, as they are here. Come see why your coat and let's go outside. A brisk walk in the snow will blow the vapors out of our brains. I'd like to take a look at that road we came up last night."

The walk toward the mesa's edge did set their blood tingling, and brought a becoming flush to Betty's cheeks that was not lost on her companion.

"If worst comes to worst, you know," he told her, "we could hoof it down this trail I suppose and—"

"Back. Go back!" ordered a gruff voice. They turned, startled, to face the Indian who had met Ramon's car the night before. Now he stepped directly before them. "Not allow anyone this way." He said it as though he meant it.

"But why?" began Bob.

"Danger! Go back." The man pointed sternly toward the house.

FIRST STEPS TAKEN TO GET NEW PIER FOR SEAL BEACH

Preliminary steps to obtain a new pier to replace the old wooden structure now at the head of Main street at Seal Beach developed at a regular session of the City Council last night, instigated by Councilman Dr. Ernest F. Green and City Engineer Victor W. Hayes.

That a new pier must be constructed before July, 1940, or the 120 foot strip donated to the city by the Security First National Bank for a park will revert to the bank, pointed out by Dr. Green, requires an immediate start on the long and involved process of financing the project, stimulated the council to action.

As a result petitions prepared by the City Attorney R. B. Brown will be circulated among property owners at an early date. If property owners approve the project, plans and specifications will be drawn and submitted to the War Department. It is planned to finance the project by a bond election to pay the city's share and to appeal to the Works Progress Administration for federal help on the balance, Dr. Green says.

Just how the city will reply to the request of the Orange County Grand Jury through Carl Mott, foreman, to adopt a picketing ordinance to conform to the one now in force in the county will be determined at the next session. Mott's request for a municipal ordinance similar to the county regulation, which would make possible uniform enforcement was referred to the city attorney for consideration and a report on January 7.

Applications of J. C. Holloway for rezoning lots near the Associated Oil company pumping plant from single residence to business to locate a lumber yard there struck a snag when Councilman Tim Husey and Attorney Brown opposed granting it without further investigation. The application was approved by the City Planning Commission, according to a recommendation filed by John Burkhead, secretary, with no objections filed by property owners within 300 feet of the location. The council is scheduled to report on the matter at the next session.

Rezonning from single to multiple residence on the property of Ole Solem, 113 Fifth street, and the property of Mrs. Ollie B. Padrick, 242 Sixth street, was approved by the council without dissent.

Maritime strike interference with the completion of the City Water Works system, brought a request from the W. P. A. that the shipments should be rerouted, in order to complete the project without undue extension of time. As the pipe is aboard the Jacob Luckenbach now tied up in the harbor the council, deciding that rerouting would not help release that, referred the matter to Attorney Brown for his attention.

Benefits of a coast erosion survey, backed by the Board of Supervisors of Los Angeles county, will be shared by the city if legislation is passed to provide $50,000 in state funds to be matched by $50,000 federal money, according to a letter filed by Herbert C. Legg, Supervisor of the First District, Los Angeles county, and the proposed plan of a similar survey in Orange county alone was dropped.

The cities' volunteer firemen will at last get their increased allotment, boosting the department to $50 a month, and day laborers will get $4 a day when ordinances given their first reading at the session last night became effective.

Part of the resolution pertaining to the Railroad Commission, follows: "Whereas, the decisions of the commission rendered during the past few months clearly demonstrate the serious demoralizing effect of such legislation upon the heretofore sound policies of that commission....Therefore, be it resolved,

"That we urge the governor and the legislature to make adequate provisions in the state budget and by appropriation from the general fund to permit all departments of the commission to perform in a satisfactory manner the duties imposed upon them by law and to thereby relieve the commission from any obligation to utilities regulated by it."

Another victory for the City of Seal Beach in litigation with the Los Angeles Gas and Electric corporation over the tax limitation amendment was reported by Attorney Brown in the action of the Fourth Court of Appeals in denying a rehearing of the case.

Gas tax money available to the city for 1936 is estimated at $945 according to word from the State Department of Public Works. This money will be used with other accrued funds in constructing the Twelfth street grade crossing.

In action brought by Charles O. Thomas and Minor Cox against one another in Santa Ana justice court yesterday afternoon, the result of an automobile collision August 20, this year, on Ortega highway, four miles from San Juan Capistrano, neither recovered damages asked, according to Judge Kenneth Morrison's decision. Thomas asked $189.19 and Cox, in a cross-complaint, asked $128.13. Each blamed the other for negligence.

The total amount asked by the 55 agencies was $66,902.845, compared with $55,899,376 appropriated for the same divisions two years ago.

Elisha Morales, charged with theft of $62.50 worth of bean straw from S. Grisel, Route 4, Santa Ana, will appear tomorrow in Santa Ana justice court when date for his trial will be set.

Police were informed that a man, "covered with blood," appeared at Walnut and Main streets early this morning, en route to his home in Orange. According to word given Officers Harry Prichard and Chet Gross, the man said he was in a Long Beach car crash and was hitchhiking home during the night because he did not want his neighbors to see him.

Mrs. Marie Gray, WPA worker, who lives in an automobile trailer home with her baby, at 815 East Second, reported to police yesterday, that she lost her purse, containing $15, at a Fourth street store. She told police she is anxious to find the money as she supports herself and baby without other assistance.

Orville and Wilbur were expert mechanics and would work in a shop for several weeks, until they had saved enough money to go ahead with the plane building.

"The neighbors thought they were crazy for believing that they could build a machine that would actually fly. I have often wondered how those scoffers felt later."

Deckert also cited the fact that Dayton, known as "the Home of Aviation," yesterday celebrated establishment of the first regular air mail service to that city.

Deckert who was born and raised in Dayton, lived next door to the Wright Brothers when they were building their first airplane. In fact Orville and Wilbur Wright constructed the hangar in which they did their work adjoining the Deckert home.

"My father had a grocery store in Dayton," Deckert said, "when the Wright Brothers were building their airplane and all the men who gathered around the store to rest and discuss national affairs, considered the boys crazy. In fact they called them the 'Nutty Wrights.'"

RESOLUTIONS DISTRIBUTED TO FARM BODY

Relieving of the California Railroad commission of "any obligation to utilities regulated by it" is the prime objective of one of more than 40 resolutions that were distributed today among members of the Orange county farm bureau.

C. J. Marks, membership secretary of the organization, said details of each resolution will be studied by departmental heads of the bureau, and thoroughly discussed at the county convention in Garden Grove Monday.

Goals of other measures were listed briefly as follows: "To aid producers to get adequate benefits of freight claims in the event of destruction of perishable goods, which is a matter to be adjusted between the growers and commission merchants; adequate laws for protection of cattle from hunters; opposition to compulsory consolidation of schools; a better setup for short time loans for vegetable growers; and further economy in state and county government, through a debt retirement policy."

Part of the resolution pertaining to the Railroad Commission, follows: "Whereas, the decisions of the commission rendered during the past few months clearly demonstrate the serious demoralizing effect of such legislation upon the heretofore sound policies of that commission....Therefore, be it resolved,

"That we urge the governor and the legislature to make adequate provisions in the state budget and by appropriation from the general fund to permit all departments of the commission to perform in a satisfactory manner the duties imposed upon them by law and to thereby relieve the commission from any obligation to utilities regulated by it."

Police News

Fred Finney, 45, 705 Minter, Santa Ana, who was arrested by Assistant District Attorney James Davis on a drunk driving charge, was sentenced today to 60 days in county jail, after pleading guilty before Justice Kenneth Morrison.

Judge D. J. Dodge of Costa Mesa reported to sheriff's officers the theft of $10.50 worth of Christmas presents from the home of Mrs. S. M. Bauman, Nineteenth and Placencia, Costa Mesa, yesterday afternoon. The burglars threw a brick through a window to gain entrance and took shirts, pajamas and socks, wrapped for mailing to Charles Hilligas. Theft of 150 to 200 pounds of avocados from the Union Oil lease property at Brea also was reported. Mr. Stearns of Santa Ana reported theft of groceries, a flashlight and coat from three cars parked near the Paul arino school last night. The coat was found, discarded, later.

The automobile, panel delivery, which Hayden Williams, 23, Los Angeles, was driving Tuesday evening when highway robbers kidnapped him, robbed him, took his clothes and dumped him in the mud of an orchard, was found by Ben Craig, highway patrol officer, yesterday, abandoned in front of 107 Lacy street.

Two men were jailed yesterday afternoon by Anaheim police to begin screening terms for drunk driving. They were Harold Carpenter, 33, Pomona, 50 days, and Frank Martinez, 21, Stanton, 50 days.

Eufemio Palma, 27, El Toro, was arrested last yesterday on a bench warrant issued from superior court, Los Angeles.

Elisha Morales, charged with theft of $62.50 worth of bean straw from S. Grisel, Route 4, Santa Ana, will appear tomorrow in Santa Ana justice court when date for his trial will be set.

ORANGE COUNTY REPRESENTED AT L. A. GROWERS' CONCLAVE

Orange county today was represented at a tomato growers' conference in Los Angeles that was expected to be a preliminary to a "bitter fight to the finish between the tomato growers and the commercial canners of California."

This was the word that came from Los Angeles and Berkeley, and the prediction of battle came from the California Farm Bureau Federation at Berkeley. The prediction was based on the outcome of an "unsatisfactory conference" between the two groups, in which the growers charged that the canners refused to "yield one inch" to demands for more equitable contracts.

Ross Crane, assistant Orange county farm advisor from offices of Harold E. Wahlberg, and R. Baker, 14, had disappeared from home on a traveling adventure and might be in Santa Ana. "They said they would like to go to Santa Ana and Orange County Park," Garmon declared. The boys disappeared from home on a bicycle.

Mrs. C. V. Branson, 824 Louise street, reported to city police yesterday that her chow dog had been struck by an automobile and had run away and hidden. The poundmaster, H. D. Pickering, was assisting in hunting the pet.

No one was injured yesterday at Fourth and Bristol as cars driven by Glen Rogers, 1249 West Second, Santa Ana, and Chester Carlisle, taxicab driver of 925 French street, Santa Ana, collided. The cars were slightly damaged. Councilman Ernest H. Layton reported the accident to police, who investigated.

The 1936 price, approximating $10 to $12 a ton, delivered at the cannery, is not acceptable to us," Robertson said. "It does not even represent cost of production."

"The average tomato production for the state is less than six tons per acre. Growers cannot afford to produce this crop, which seriously depletes soil fertility, at the price canners willingly pay."

"The economic conditions which California canners have imposed upon growers, throughout the years, virtually are those of serfdom. We are determined we will stand these conditions no longer."

Robertson said that unless canners agree to pay higher prices many farmers would convert tomato acreage to government soil building programs and "be better off than by growing a crop to sell at giveaway prices."

Some 500 or 600 license plates, from every state in the Union, were being prepared today by California highway patrol officers for use as fish bait, believe it or not, Mr. Ripley.

Some of the plates have been taken in when tourists came to California and decided to stay here and others have been found after being lost from automobiles. The plates have been gathered at the highway patrol office during the past year.

Each one will be cut through the middle with a pair of tin-smith's shears and then taken to the ocean. A boat will haul the "junk" several miles out to sea where it will be dumped overboard.

FIVE SPEEDERS FINED
Five speeders were fined in city court yesterday, records of Judge J. G. Mitchell show. They were Verne Anthony, Edgar hotel, Santa Ana, $5; William Brooks, Hollywood, $10; Joe Kersen, Los Angeles, $5; Charles Spicer, Jr., 2348 North Park boulevard, $8, and Victor H. Webbeking, 537 East Washington, Orange, $8. E. B. Brenhaus paid $2 on two illegal parking tickets.

OF BEACH CITY
IS STRESSED

With a definite program before them of obtaining changing transportation from street car to a bus system with reduced fares, maintaining proper drainage and street improvement, and cleaning up the beach, 14 property owners and representatives of large real estate holdings in Seal Beach took first steps in organizing a long needed Seal Beach Improvement Association at a dinner and business meeting at Golden Inn Thursday evening.

Temporary officers for the new organization named at the meeting are: Ernest R. More, chairman; Mrs. Don T. Preston, vice-chairman; Mrs. William F. Kennedy, secretary. The board of directors, which will meet Saturday, to select a date for a public meeting of all property owners, includes Mrs. Mary Lettice, Mrs. Jessie M. Havens, A. W. Stegert, J. C. Putnam, and Everett Koonin.

Designed to concern itself only with property improvement, the organization is non-political, and its inclusion as articles of the constitution three points specifically limiting its activities in the following terms:

This association is formed for the purpose of general improvement of and for the city of Seal Beach that concerns real property only. No business other than such as concerns real property shall be brought before the association for discussion or decision. No officer of the association may be an employee of or an official of the city of Seal Beach.

Assurance of the co-operation of Long Beach in an improvement program was announced by Charles Cordray of the division of public relations of Long Beach, who addressed the group on "What It Takes to Make a City."

The necessity of continued vigilance to keep up the value and maintain property was stressed by Gene Row who also spoke on improvement as it concerns real property.

MRS. GRACE COLLINS
DIES IN HOSPITAL

Suddenly stricken Mrs. Grace M. Collins, 62, died yesterday at Santa Ana Valley Hospital after an illness of several hours. She was the wife of T. Dunstan Collins, well-known Santa Ana musician and band director and had lived in Santa Ana for the past six years.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 10 a. m. in the Westminster funeral home. The Rev. C. D. Hicks, pastor of the Missionary Christian Alliance church of Elgin, will officiate. Interment will be in Parkview cemetery.

In addition to her husband Mrs. Collins is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Grace Irene Wren, Santa Ana; a son, Don G. Collins, Tustin; a grandson, Jack Wren, Santa Ana; and two brothers, W. H. Porter, Thousand Oaks, and Aaron Gould, Los Angeles.

RUTH JENKINS AND
WALT. MERKER WED

Although no details were available of an interesting wedding today in Palm Springs, several close relatives and family friends shared the telegraphed announcement that Miss Ruth Jenkins and Walter ("Wally") Merker were exchanging vows today in the popular desert winter resort.

Mr. Merker, who is a brother of Fred G. Merker, 215 North Ross street, is Riverside manager for Carl Elder. His bride, whose parents reside in Illinois, is proprietor of the well-known Ruth Jenkins' Sandwich shop on South Main street, where she established that business seven years ago.

GOOD GARDENING

By Mrs. H. Cardoza Sloan, Corona Del Mar

Being sound advice and interesting comment on what to plant and how to care for Orange County gardens.

CHRISTMAS

Christmas time! Green boughs, berries, wreaths, Christmas trees of forest green, of shining silver, of the blue gleam of moonlight on a frosty night. Christmas decorations in festoons of silver tinsel, in showers of ornaments, balls, bells, birds and a score of fanciful shapes, in scintillating scarlet, green, gold, silver, blue, Christmas lights that twinkle and gleam. Christmas bells ringing merrily. Christmas carols drifting on the evening air. Christmas turkeys in countless ovens, filling happy homes with richly browning fragrance. Christmas feasts ready for the spreading. And Christmas gifts in wrappings that delight the eye with their varied color and charm.

Christmas! What a merry time! How it shines in the eyes of the children. How, even in the hearts of the oldest and staidest, trees made of cranberries, and ropes of cranberries carrying out the design. The other day I saw a charming tea table centered by a dome of cranberries set on a circle of dark, shining leaves. The foundation of this so I was told, was a cabbage, which makes such a decoration, easy for any of us, and afterward we could eat both cranberries and cabbage.

A small cabbage or a large apple makes a fine foundation into which to stick sharply cut ends of evergreen clippings. Make a circle first around the base and then work up the apple in graduated rows. You may scoop out the center to hold a tall red candle, and at little effort and practically no expense have a delightful Christmas centerpiece. To make a good wreath takes a little time and care—but someyen, of the caddest and weariest, something pure and sweet and trusting, something simple and sincere and childlike stirs to life at the Christmas season.

Do you know the little poem Thomas Hardy wrote referring to the ancient legend that at mid-night on Christmas Eve the oxen fall on their knees in worship, as they have done through all the years since the cattle knelt in adoration in the stable at Bethlehem?

"Christmas Eve, and twelve of the clock.
"Now they are all on their knees."
An elder said as we sat in a flock
By the embers in hearthside ease.

We pictured the meek, mild creatures where
They dwell in their strawy pen,
Nor did it occur to one of us there
To doubt they were kneeling then.

So fair a fancy few would weave
In these years! Yet, I feel,
If someone said on Christmas Eve,
"Come, see the oxen kneel,"

"In the lonely barton by yonder
Our childhood used to know,"
I should go with them in the gloom,
Hoping it might be so."

"Except ye become as a little child," the Master said. And somehow I think we are all of us a little nearer the Kingdom of Heaven at Christmas time.

Christmas is getting to be such a colorful time! When I was a child Christmas was green and white, tremendously enlivened by scarlet. But that was as far as we ventured into the rainbow.

And Christmas wrappings. Believe it or not, friends, when I was a child the gifts hung on our "Sunday School" Christmas tree were done up in plain brown wrapping paper, and tied with all old scrap of string. And the only trimmings on the tree were strings of popcorn and strings of cranberries. Nothing to glitter or sparkle or shine. We thought it was wonderful, or rather that they were wonderful.

We had two trees, one at each end of the low platform, tipping the ceiling. And when Santa Claus with snow on his red coat and a pack on his back, came down the aisle—or sometimes he crawled through a window near the Christmas tree (it being rather too much to ask him to come down the chimney and through the fiery furnace) we tingled from head to toe, and the more timid crawled under the seats in their awe and excitement.

Can remember when I first became dimly aware that the man in the red suit and Santa Claus whiskers was one we were more accustomed to seeing in the blue smock of the village butcher. The glittering mystery which Santa Claus lost through this gradual discovery became transferred to the person of the butcher, who ever after, to my eyes, carried about him something of the sparkle of Christmas Eve.

Speaking of cranberry decorations, cranberries are again making a festive holiday bow, beyond their perennial appearance in sauces and jellies.

Perhaps you saw pictured on the cover of the December "Sunset" a Christmas dinner table in the modern manner, with little

A GREAT DISCOVERY IS ANNOUNCED.

ING FERDINAND and Queen Isabella were holding court Barcelona, when Christopher Columbus arrived at Palos, back on a voyage of more than seven months on the mysterious Atlantic. Summoned to the royal presence, the great admiral donned his best and brought with him the lions and other "proofs" of his recovery of America. Surrounded by a brilliant company of cavaliers, he approached royal dais. As he told his story, pointed to the proofs of his adventure--the Indians, the parrots, the brightly plumed birds, the mis and gems from the islands the had visited. When he finished, prayers were chanted, and Columbus was conducted to the ms that had been provided for the 15-cent stamp of the Cuban series of 1893 pictures incident, in which Columbus announces his discovery. It is from a painting by Ricardo aca, in Madrid.

Trusting Officer Duped By Thieves

LITTLE FALLS, N. Y. (UP)--Two men approached the watchman at the New York Central railroad yards at Salisbury Center, identified themselves as workmen and carted away 270 feet of rails. It was a ruse for the steel was stolen.

Search was concentrated in the immediate area on the theory that the thieves could not go far with their heavy burden. Police were correct in that theory.

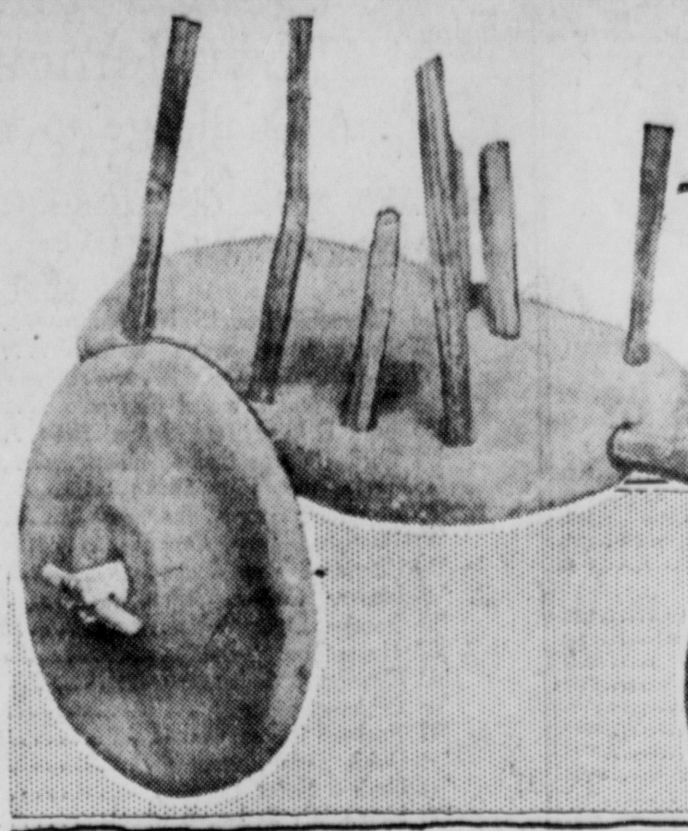

Several tons of railroad rails were discovered in bushes along a deserted road. The rails were sawed into sections and covered with old bays, papers and tree branches.

Police believe the tracks were placed in hiding until the search was abandoned.

FINE PAID IN DIMES

HAVERHILL, Mass.--(UP)--All activity was halted when Harry G. Emmons of Methuen paid his $10 fine on a driving charge. He paid the fine in dimes and it took the city marshal some time to count the 100 dimes.

A 5000-year-old version of a toy to be pulled around the floor. Ox carts like this are still seen on the roads of India today.

By Emily C. Davis

A SANTA CLAUS town that made toys for the good little children in 3000 B. C. has been unearthed—in India.

And what toys, you promptly ask, did the good little children ask for?

What could the jolly toymakers make for their juvenile "customers" in those "high and far-off times?"

For answer, archeologists can now produce a large assortment of 5000-year-old toys. They show you marbles and whistles, gay rattles, sheep that rolled nicely on two wheels and had strings attached for pulling the painted beasts. They display ox carts ready to be loaded with pebbles and pulled around the floor. Any modern child could amuse itself with these old, old playthings.

Unearthing this oldest of Santa Claus towns has fallen to the good luck of American archeologists.

When the Indian government let down the bars that forbade foreigners to dig in this region, two years ago, two American organizations promptly seized the chance. Forming a joint expedition, the Boston Museum of Fine Arts and the American School of Indic and Iranian Studies arranged to dig into three mounds of earth at Chanhu-daro.

Hidden inside many such mounds of earth have been found dead cities of the east, with streets and stumps of walls piled layer upon layer, just as the people leveled off wreckage of one demolished city to build anew on the ruins.

At Chanhu-daro, the American archeologists, led by Field Director Ernest Mackay, burrowed through two layers of cities and probed down 13 feet, when they found themselves in the town of toys.

More and more playthings they picked out of this layer of ruins. The toys were like plums or prizes hidden in a big earthen pudding. Mr. Mackay came to realize that here were far too many playthings to supply children of one town alone, however fortunate.

THE explanation seems to be this: Chanhu-daro in its distant day was like Germany's Nuremberg, a picturesque and flourishing center of a thriving toy trade.

Toys found at Chanhu-daro break at least one record for antiquity. Certainly no archeologist ever before has made such a haul of early toys in quantity. And as individual objects these toys of 3000 B. C. rank high among the world's oldest playthings.

There are, of course, objects thousands of years older that may be toys—or they may not. Nobody can tell about them.

There is a little brown teddy bear 20,000 years old, for example, found in a grotto of southern France. The little stone bear is a gem of realistic Stone Age art. But whether it was the familiar plaything of a cave man's child, or whether it was a charm used in dangerous magic, and not for children to dare touch, will probably never be proved.

A set of chess men discovered last season dates from almost 4000 B. C. These alabaster game pieces were found in the grave of a little boy who lived in the city of Tepe Gawra, in Mesopotamia. But they represent amusements of a rather older lad, not exactly in a class with the very young children's toys that the Indian town has so lavishly revealed.

People examining the Indian playthings are struck by their modern appearance. But that modern touch is what archeologists have come to expect when they dig up any bit of ancient toy history.

Toys for the littlest children have not changed much in 5000 years. Same wheel-toy-on-string. Same rattles, whistles, balls,

Scientists have unearthed a prehistoric city in India where toys in great abundance and of surprisingly "modern" design prove that even the ancients liked to pamper and amuse their children as we do today carts to load and unload.

It is a curious touch of human psychology that mothers and fathers of so early a time seized upon essential features of play that would amuse the babies.

Now that child psychologists are learning to tell what a baby thinks about, they can discover at last why the littlest children like these simple, old-fashioned toys. Not that babies have ever failed to show by expert pantomime whether they wanted any toy or not. But who could say whether baby picked the nice horse because it was a horse, or had a red coat, or was just the right size to pop into his mouth when he got a chance to do it unobserved?

The relative appeals of color, noise, shape, and other fine points of toy psychology can now be explored. But so far as the toys go, in basic principle, the Bronze Age toy makers did their work so well that there has been little change or improvement these thousands of years.

Toy makers of Chanhu-daro put time and care into their work. A toy ox cart from the ruins is found equipped with clay wheels that turn, and with stakes around the cart edge to keep the load from tumbling off. A shaft is attached to the cart, and two humped oxen of clay to pull it. Real carts of this very type can be seen in India today.

When the Indian toy makers cut marbles out of shell, they took trouble to carve designs around the surface to make the little balls pretty. Rattles for the babies were brightly painted.

Exploring the buried layers of ancient Chanhu-daro. The well belongs to an early age; the steps are modern, installed for the convenience of the scientists. . . . The photo above the map shows a toy striped hen of 5000 years ago.

If there were wood carvers in Chanhu-daro, who cut wooden animals and dolls and painted them for the children, that evidence is lost. Wood was too perishable to survive so long in that climate.

Clay, however, is more enduring, and fortunately for the archeologists who are re-discovering the ancient history of toys, clay was standard stuff for toymaking among those prehistoric artisans.

A toymaker would shape a clay hen, with holes for producing a whistle.

Then he, or she—for women have often been the potters in early civilization—would paint the little hen with a pleasing striped pattern. And no modern critic can object that hens are not striped like tigers, when modern toy makers revel in pink plush elephants and checked gingham dogs.

EVEN children made toys in the world's oldest known town of this trade. Imitating their elders for the fun of it, they shaped toys of mud and baked them hard in holes in the ground covered with fuel.

Your eyes take in the familiar, and the strange, details of these ancient toys. And you try to imagine youngsters so very long ago laughing and playing with these very objects, in a town just progressing from the Stone Age into the Age of Bronze. It is not too easy to picture the scene.

But archeologists come to the rescue of modern imagination. They can report from their discoveries what the toy town in India looked like.

Even in its ruined state, this ancient town is surprisingly modern. It was a well-planned settlement, and a progressive one. The brick houses were equipped with central heating: flues under the floors warmed the rooms in cold weather. Mr. Mackay declared that nearly every house had its bathroom and drains. Houses were aligned along streets and lanes in true city fashion. And every street had drainage.

With high praise for this system, Mr. Mackay pronounces it superior in sanitation to that found in cities of other civilizations of its time. Many cities of the Orient today are not so well equipped, he declares.

Like many other buried cities, Chanhu-daro is known mainly by the durable articles it produced. Clothing and other fragile things have long since vanished in the earth. The ancient people of India did, however, engrave pictures on seal amulets showing what their clothing, furnishings, and other features of their life were like, and these add greatly to information gathered from the real relics of stone, clay, metal and bone that have survived.

People of Chanhu-daro, it seems, took to the new fashion of using copper and bronze to replace old-fashioned stone. Their ruined city contains metal chisels, spear heads, blade axes, and vessels. But just as motorized America still has its horses, so Bronze Age Chanhu-daro still used old reliable stone for kitchen knives and some other utensils.

TOILET tables of clay with four short legs are among trophies from the ancient city, showing that personal appearance was rated important. A bronze jar that held a cosmetic is another relic of the beauty table. And a great many stone palettes, on which eye paints and other beautifiers could be mixed and prepared, have been discovered.

Headdresses were elaborate, so Mr. Mackay learned from styles worn by clay figurines of goddesses. And like Egyptian women, the Indian woman who had her hair freshly done could sleep on a nice hard headrest that would not crush the coiffure. This Indian pillow was made of painted pottery.

First and foremost, so the digging reveals, Chanhu-daro was a trade town. It had the economic good fortune to stand on an Indian trade route. Toy makers could stuff their packs and dispatch them by ox-load or caravan over well-traveled highways to distant cities.

Beads were another notable product, for which the town may have gained fame. In the ruins, the American archeologists have discovered many agate and carnelian beads. So fine is the polish on these beads that craftsmen of the Indian town are hailed as experts at working hard stones.

And what is particularly remarkable about this bead work is that they used stone drills—not copper, as archeologists had always supposed the ancients must have used to bore bead holes. What abrasive helped them is still to be learned. It may have been emery.

Bead makers of Chanhu-daro did amazingly tiny work. Buried in their city for 5000 years has lain a string of beads so small that 40 can be strung to the inch. Nothing coarser than a hair would string these pin-point beads. The beads are of soft material, as stone goes. But how those craftsmen with their simple tools ever bored the tiny objects is a puzzle to the archeologists who have discovered them.

When unearthed, these beads were stuck together by the salty soil. They had apparently been put away in a basket, long since vanished.

There can be no doubt that Chanhu-daro was a keen business center. Good evidence is the large number of stone weights found through the ruins. These weights are mainly cubes, carefully polished and graded to a simple ratio of 1, 2, 4, and so on.

Business was supervised, even as far back as the dawn of the Bronze Age, so archeologists surmise, for similar weights recovered from the two other Indian towns of the age that archeologists have so far explored, are of similar size. And that means that weighing of goods for sale was strictly supervised.

HOW far trade of the Indian cities spread is not yet known. Toys from this place may have given pleasure to children many miles away. But did they reach the cities of Mesopotamia—Tepe Gawra, Erech, Ur of the Chaldees, and others—1400 miles to the north-west? The land of Egypt was even more distant, with the Arabian desert to be crossed.

With only two or three Indian towns of 3000 B. C. unearthed, scientists are already convinced that India was not aloof from its great rivals and neighbors in the dawn of civilization. Hereafter, the cradle lands of our civilization have been considered two—Egypt and Mesopotamia. Now, India is revealing itself as a third civilizing power at the third corner of a great sprawling triangle.

Objects proving to archeological satisfaction that India did have contacts with Mesopotamian cities have already been discovered. And this part of the world's ancient story is only beginning to open up.

Until a few years ago, the oldest civilization in India that was clearly demonstrated was no older than 300 B. C. Yet the literature of India testified to people far older than this, and mentioned strong forts left by people before 1500 B. C.

Then British archeologists struck the first discovery of India's real antiquity, and announced finding city ruins at Mohenjo-daro as old as 3000 B. C., and since then India has been drawn more and more closely into the tangled pattern of civilization.

The new-found city, Chanhu-daro, had its greatest glory when it was young, so the ruins reveal. The later settlements shrank. After the age of the toy and bead makers, there followed a people who lived in matting houses and walked on rough paving, very different from the old city's substantial dignity.

EDITORIAL FEATURES

SUDDEN DEATH AGAIN

Sudden death rode the highway again Wednesday evening in the Santa Ana area. It brings to our mind again the words of the chief counsel of the Southern California Automobile Club "that no driver goes out on the road deliberately seeking an accident or death." The tragic circumstances surrounding the accident between Tyrone's camp and Newport Beach, proves that statement beyond a doubt. "Then what is it that is behind these tragedies?" the attorney asks. Answering his own question, he declared he believed that man must be taught to pay more attention to the thing he is doing, and to the thing the other fellow is doing.

This same subject was mentioned just a few days ago in these columns. We feel that too much cannot be said about a matter that yearly claims more than 35,000 lives in the nation. We are not seeking to place blame in this or any other accident. We merely are again expressing great concern over what apparently is becoming one of the state's most serious problems.

If we can only learn to pay more attention to the thing we are doing when we are behind the wheel, and more attention to what the other fellow is doing, we are sure we all will have a better chance of surviving.

A WASTE OF TIME

Whether or not a sport is a waste of time, all depends upon the individual. If one gets enjoyment and develops the body and mind, it certainly is not a waste of time. What would be a waste of time to one, would not be a waste of time to another.

In discussing the subject the other day, a Santa Ana facetiously remarked that work was a waste of time. Another said now that seemed to be true.

Whether or not work is a waste of time depends altogether on what kind of work. Evidently work is a waste of time when it is done just to produce additional wealth that is not used intelligently either because the owner does not understand the proper use of wealth or because the government appropriates this wealth and uses it to spoil the initiative and self-respect of the recipients of this wealth.

The real work that is now most needed and which certainly is not a waste of time is the work used in intelligently educating society, so that great leadership will be permitted. There was never a time in American history, in fact in European history, when work of this kind was so badly needed. As Professor Whitehead, British philosopher, expressed it, "The problem is not how to produce great men but how to produce great societies. The great society will put up men for the occasion."

It has been work along this line that has been so badly neglected for the past half century and we are now paying the penalty of negligence.

INFLATION AND HIGHER LIVING STANDARDS

There is no doubt that during the early and mid stage of inflation, the living standards of people as a whole are higher than they are without inflation. It is for this reason that it is very difficult to get the average person to seriously analyze inflation and why this is true. This being true, makes it exceedingly inviting and very popular.

Let us analyze why the standard of living is higher during inflation periods. Remember we are simply thinking aloud and are pioneering in this explanation. We would be glad to be corrected by any reader if our conclusions are not sound.

The standard of living is higher for the reason that, during inflation, creditors—those who have bank deposits, life insurance, notes, etc.—are having their rights to consume future goods reduced. These credits, or due-bills, by inflation become of less real value; that is, the credits, when turned into money, will buy less. This wealth represented by due-bills of creditors, is transferred to the borrowers. These borrowers either invest it in capital goods which make a demand for labor or they pass it out to workmen for consumable goods. This, thus, makes the amount of goods available for immediate consumption greater when inflation is going on.

This process continues until such time as the creditors realize what is taking place. When they realize that their savings, their ownership in wealth, is being taken from them, they proceed to protect themselves. When the money in the country can be converted into actual value, like gold or silver, those who have credits transfer these credits in gold or silver to prevent their savings from being taken from them. This is what happened in 1929 when the creditors began to realize what inflation had done to their savings.

Now that we are not on a specie basis, the only way those who have credits can protect themselves is to refuse to loan and put their savings in actual wealth. This is much more difficult to do than to put it in gold and silver because actual wealth, unless it is in the form of capital well managed, is very difficult and expensive to preserve. Only those with the most foresight are able to put their savings in the form of active, productive capital.

Thus, inflation, while it temporarily creates apparent prosperity, greatly reduces the later standard of living because inflation has allowed more wealth to be consumed than was actually produced during the time of consumption. More wealth was consumed than was actually produced because inflation permitted borrowers to borrow money and later pay it back with money that would not buy as much. This encouraged enterprise and spending. But it took from the creditors the wealth they expected to consume later. Their credits had been reduced by inflation so that the creditors were obliged to do without an amount equal to the change in purchasing power of the dollar due to inflation.

In addition to the above influences on why the standard of living is higher during inflation, those who have considerable credits come to believe that if each succeeding year their credits are of less value, they had better spend it quickly rather than conserve it. This also adds to the current standard of living.

The whole principle is just the same as it would be should a farmer decide to consume his seed corn rather than plant it. His standard of living would be higher during the year he consumed it but each succeeding year his standard of living would be lower.

A REAL LAW FOR LABOR

There have been many laws passed with the intention of raising the standard of living of the workers but the one real law that would permanently raise the standard of living never yet has been adopted. Nearly every law that has been intended to raise the standard of living of the workers has, instead of raising their standard, lowered it. It is true that some of these laws quite often temporarily have improved conditions but, in the long run, they have lowered the standard of living.

The one principle that we refer to that would raise the standard of living of all workers, and which has never been enacted into a law, is a principle that would be, a penalty, compel wealthy people to be democratic; that is, to live temperately and be stewards of their wealth. It would also raise the wages and the standard of living of all workers. This one principle is that those who are not democratic and who do not so use their wealth to raise the standard of living shall be forced to do so by the voting majority, by a graduated tax on their wealth that they do not so use. This principle of compelling people to be democratic, sincere, thoughtful and considerate of others, can best be put into actual operation by a graduated tax on personal consumption, making the tax at a much higher rate for large consumptions of wealth than for a small amount of consumption.

It is strange that we try so many different arbitrary, unnatural and unscientific laws to improve the condition of the great mass of people and yet do not adopt the one fundamental rule and law that would help most.

FUN, ART AND PRIZES

In this Christmas week, it should be easy for those who have pleasure in beauty—and few their are who haven't—to use their already acquired holiday season spirit in having a little fun, practicing a little art and possibly winning a prize. And the cost is absolutely nothing.

In having that fun, practicing that art and possibly winning that prize, there is but one requisite, filling out a coupon found in The Register each day between now and Christmas eve—and decorating the family Christmas tree in the window of the home. Filling out the coupon and decorating the tree automatically makes him or her who does it a competitor in the contest being held by The Register, through cooperation of the chamber of commerce.

Judges will make their decisions on the winners by viewing the competitors' trees from outside of the windows of the competitors' homes. Beauty is the contest's keynote. First, second and third prizes are $8, $5, and $2, respectively. If you like to decorate your Christmas tree, you're eligible, and welcome to join the contest.

"HOME, JAMESH!"

If you're about to leave a party, and you notice that the room is weaving and bobbing, make your way as best you can to the nearest phone and tell Central, "I'm at such-and-such an address, and I don't wanna drive home." In a short time, a taxicab will arrive with two drivers. One will take you home; the other will take your car home.

That's a service now offered by taxicab companies in certain eastern cities. And it is to be hoped that it will be inaugurated generally throughout the country.

If it is made available to and used by persons who drink not wisely, but too well, it may help abate the terrible drunken driver menace that helps build the nation's casualty toll.

REFUGEE SEEKERS

Edward F. Rowell, regional labor adviser, is quoted as authority for the statement that more than 87,000 individuals, seeking refuge from the drought, entered California in search of employment during the year ending June 15, 1936.

Many Happy Returns

News Behind The News

By Paul Mallon

ERA—

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18—Several confidential dinners for business men have been staged in New York since election by prominent unofficial friends of the New Deal.

The apparent purpose was to promote a better understanding of government among the business leaders, who are anxious to cooperate if they can only find out what is expected of them. The move seems to be the first realistic step toward establishment of the mutually desirable "era of good feeling."

The obligations of business men toward the social security act and toward administration aims of improving hours and wages were among the things discussed.

No reporters were invited and no publicity sought, because of the unofficial and preliminary nature of the discussions. However, an excellent authority here says that three dinners have been held so far, that more are to come, and that one of the backers of the plan is Bernard Baruch, the leading friend of the New Deal in financial circles.

The dinners may lead to a later series of official meetings of business leaders and government officials here.

RETRENCHMENT—

The insiders around WPA will admit, if you can catch them in a confidential mood, that their widely advertised savings are more advertised than wide.

Much has been published about the sharp reductions in their administrative force. What is said to be contemplated actually is a reduction of about 10 per cent among their 30,000 administrative employees. It does not appear to be entirely an economy move, but a natural result of the voluntary curtailment in the number of WPA relief workers. About 3 per cent per month are retiring voluntarily.

Official figures show a reduction from 3,800,000 relief workers last March to 3,200,000 at the latest accounting, but these figures include CCC and some direct relief. Their real figure now is supposed to be down to 2,400,000. This is not large enough to furnish workers for all the PWA projects which are contemplated, and much outside skilled labor will have to be hired.

Note—There will be no trouble about getting WPA funds through congress this year. Harry Hopkins had much difficulty last year with senators who thought he was throwing away money. His appropriations were held up for months. This year, the senators are in a different mood.

CUSTOMS—

Planners of President Roosevelt's inaugural are said to have cautioned him against an outdoor ceremony, in one of their private White House meetings. They pointed out that it is likely to be snowing or near zero here in mid-January, and they advised an indoor ceremony or closed stands.

Mr. Roosevelt objected strongly. He said that, even if a blizzard is blowing and the thermometer is at zero, he intends to renew his office in the same spot and in the same way as his predecessors, bareheaded, in front of the crowd. The suggestion then was offered that he might go back inside and deliver his inaugural over loudspeakers if the weather is extreme. Probably some such arrangements will be made.

In all other respects, this first January inaugural is apparently to be the same as March inaugurals in the past, with no concessions to the weather.

Note—The stands are being enlarged this year to seat the 435 congressmen in proper style. Hereafter, the lowly legislators have been permitted to crowd around the pillars. The press stands also are being enlarged to accommodate the 30 per cent more newsmen registered here since the New Deal started making news four years ago. All the dignitaries will sit on wooden stands, but a small steel floor is being built this year for Mr. Roosevelt, just large enough to accommodate about 18 or 20 persons.

DISSATISFACTION—

The rumor that Harry Hopkins may get out to take that Chicago mail order job has been going around for a long time. His confidants say he has had it in mind several times, but that nothing will come of it any time soon. It has always been denied officially whenever it has appeared, but that does not necessarily mean anything these days.

The WPA administrator received a raise in pay to $12,000 from the last congress, and no one knows more than he does about WPA. At the same time, the job of paring down is not one exactly suited to his talents and enthusiasm. Later on he will certainly hit the outward trail.

LOVE WORKER—

What J. Edgar Hoover apparently needs is a good publicity man.

Grows were heard among congressmen when they read in the papers that the investigation bureau chief had scooped New York and New Jersey police in the capture of another bandit. The congressmen have heard similar complaints from at least six other city police authorities and one organization of state troopers. There is no question that several congressmen and at least two senators would like to get Hoover out. He is going to have more trouble than he had with the New York police when his annual appropriation bill comes up next year.

For Pest sake, pop said, and I said, Sure, honey smokes, I remember many a time you and me trying to sneak upstairs with packages that Santa Claus was supposed to be of, and I used to pretend I didn't see you and go back in the dining room or some place so you could sneak easier, and on Christmas morning when you woke me up to show me what Santa Claus had brought me I wasn't going to be mean enough to tell you I knew different.

Yee gods, this is very affecting, pop said. What lucky parents to have such a considerate child to humor us in our little innocent fancies. Go and wash those hands, he said.

Wich I did.

Little Benny's Note Book

BY LEE PAPE

Me and pop was in the living room waiting for Nora to ring the dinner bell for supper, and I said, Hay pop, how old were you when you stopped believing in Santa Claus?

O, I must of ben almost as old as you are now, pop said. In those glamorous days children were children all during childhood, so to speak. Yee indeed, Saint Nick was a very real character to me for many years, I am glad to say, because the myths of our childhood are the happy myths, as compared to the myths of our adult years such as the myth that we will save some money next year or the myth that we are looking younger every day. If I remember ritely, you lost your faith in Santa Claus when you were only 5 or 6 years old, he said.

G, even before that, I said, and pop said. It can't be possible, I distinctly remember your big round eyes and your little protruding tongue as you scratched out your last letter to Santa and gave it to me to mail for you, he said, and I said, Sure, I remember that one too. You and me stood there watching me write it and looking at each other so happy I didn't want to spoil everything by telling you I had even wrote the last couple of letters before that more for your pleasure than mine, I said.

For Pest sake, pop said, and I said, Sure, honey smokes, I remember many a time you and me trying to sneak upstairs with packages that Santa Claus was supposed to be of, and I used to pretend I didn't see you and go back in the dining room or some place so you could sneak easier, and on Christmas morning when you woke me up to show me what Santa Claus had brought me I wasn't going to be mean enough to tell you I knew different.

Thoughts On Modern Life

GOVERNMENT AFTER THE STORM

Yesterday I suggested that government cannot—and, in my judgment, should not—escape the role of savior in the midst of emergency.

In a nation founded upon political democracy and free enterprise, government must, in an emergency, do the things that an economy of free enterprise cannot do or, if it can, cannot do quickly enough.

It is the crowning glory of democracy when it succeeds in capturing the short-run values of dictatorship during an emergency and then knows how to return to the long-run values of democracy when the emergency is over.

I said yesterday that the very qualities and actions of government which save us in an emergency may retard us under normal conditions.

The capacity of government to borrow and spend lavishly and to bring about drastic emergency adjustments of production to market is sometimes the only thing that meets an emergency.

But with the emergency over government must readjust its role, for political action in an emergency and political action after an emergency are two different things.

In phases of crisis, political action is accorded a position out of all proportion to its actual effectiveness in bringing permanent benefit to the lives of men.

The genius of government, aside from its capacity for quick action and lavish spending, is essentially regulative.

It is more adept with the bit than with the spur. When government undertakes to deal directly with the dynamic forces of modern enterprise, its impulse is to curb. It is tempted to scale the problem down to its capacity for management.

And that can never extract the full fruits of this technological age for the benefit of the masses.

OUR CHILDREN

BY ANGELO PATRI

A CHILD'S MONEY

"What is to be done with a young man, nineteen years of age, who earns fifteen dollars a week, spends every cent of it outside the house and then demands money to buy necessary clothes, medicine and the like?"

Don't grant the demands. Give him an itemized bill for his keep, show him how much he costs. Then try to show him how to budget his money so as to take some of the care of himself off the family. It will be hard to do because the time for such instruction and experiences has long passed.

Money, its earning and spending, is a phase of a child's education that is too often overlooked. The children are given money to get what they want as they need it. No account is kept of it. They have no idea of how much money there is to be spent, where it comes from, where it goes, and their relationship to the whole scheme. They get into the habit of spending. Beyond that they know nothing. They are not to blame then for the mistakes they make. When a child grows to adolescence he should be almost entirely self-controlled.

If we want children to understand about money we must teach them, just as we do with every other idea we want them to hold. The day they begin asking for money to spend they should get an allowance. At first they are to spend this as they like. It is very little. They are to learn that the allowance comes regularly, at a fixed time, and after it is spent there is no more until next pay day. That idea is the first one set. Make certain about it before taking the next one.

Increase the allowance to cover some personal necessity. Let the child buy school material as he must have. Teach him to save for things he knows he must have by and by. The span of saving must be short, from week to week, then month to month. This is to give him the notion of looking toward the future and providing for it.

As soon as the child passes the penny-for-candy stage he should begin to keep accounts. A simple system that shows money received, and the date; money spent, for what, and the date. By and by he gets an account book. Keeping accounts is an essential part of money education. The child must know where his money comes from, and when, and for what it goes, and when. He learns a great deal out of this experience.

Gradually the allowance is increased, the number and variety of necessities he buys increase, his accounts are more carefully kept. His responsibilities grow and develop with his experiences. By the time he is ready for college or a job, he knows something of the meaning and use of money.

When the child shows himself intelligent about his getting and spending he is admitted to the family council. He begins to learn how much money there is in the household budget, and for what it is spent, and his relationship to the getting and spending. He becomes a partner in the family concern. He assumes his share of the burden of family finance.

The young person who earns money and says it is none of the family's business how he spends it, is impossible. He will have to train himself by sad and bitter experience.
